CANNED HARMONY AT DEMOCRATIC MEETING

County Committee Side--Steps Party Reorganization Issue.

STAR CHAMBER AFFAIR

Representative of "The Republican" on Hand to Report Proceedings, Barred From Meeting—Editor Kurtz Bossed the Big Show.

With editor Kurtz, of the "Centre Democrat," bossing the job, Tuesday's meeting of the Democratic County Committee produced lots of manufactured harmony—on the surface. But, like the old lady's freckles, the harmony was only skin deep, and the meeting adjourned with no relaxing of the feeling of bitterness among Democrats generally since County Chairman Kimport turned down the old-line party men and voted for Guthrie for State Chairman.

Being the little boss of the occasion, editor Kurtz was the principal speaker at the meeting. As chief reorganizer in the Democratic party in the County, and the man who forced Chairman Kimport to go against the party regulars, editor Kurtz bossed the whole show. There were others who spoke, but the speech of editor Kurtz was staged as the big attraction. Old-line party men who were present were given the privilege of talking, but editor Kurtz and his little band were constantly on guard to squelch any effort to have the opposing party factions settle their differences, then and there.

There were no resolutions introduced indorsing or censuring Chatrman Kimport for lining up with the Guthrie crowd at Harrisburg. Kimport, preferring to take no chances on putting through a resolution of indorsement, asked committeemen to meet, adjourn and allow the question of reorganization to drift until after the coming November election. The election once over, the reorganizers plan going ahead and reading out of the Democratic party every regular not in accord with the new fandangled whims of editor Kurtz.

The editor of "The Republican," desiring to report the proceedings of the meeting as a matter of legitimate news, was notified by Chairman Kimport that he would not be admitted. As Chairman Kimport stated it, no newspaper men were to be admitted. Editor Kurtz as the boss of the meeting, admitted himself. A reporter of the "Democratic Watchman" was admitted as a matter of unavoidable courtesy. Editor Meek, of the "Democratic Watchman," did not attend.

The committee, not having a chance to settle their troubles, adjourned with the several members much in the same mood as they were before coming to town. One member, a reorganizer, expressed delight that no annoying resolutions indorsing Chairman Kimport had been introduced. Another committeeman, who happened to be a regular, remarked:

"Seems to me we don't know any more about where we're at than before we came to the meeting. Where are we at, anyhow?"

Several other committeemen who heard the query smiled and let it go at that. The question was too much for them. Many of the committeemen privately agreed that the Democratic situation in Centre County will be demoralized until one faction or the other demonstrates that it is in the majority and rightfully assumes control.

There was an air of suppressed excitement as the committee was called to order in the grand jury room at the Court House. The managers of both factions were afraid that a brick might come from almost any direction. The Democratic candidates, who were as thick as flies in a sugar barrel, also wore a worried look. They, too, feared that some trouble-making resolution might be sprung at any moment. Being interested primarily in their individual election in November they were not concerned about the welfare of the Democratic party.

One nice thing about the meeting was that every member of the committee had his traveling expenses paid and also got a free dinner. They were not informed whose barrel had been tapped to pay the bill. Inasmuch as the railroad companies require cash down, it may be accepted as a fact that somebody put up the money, and so far as may be learned, Chairman Kimport has never admitted that there was a cent in the committee treasury following last year's campaign. One report had it that the money was secured by levying an assessment on the several Democratic aspirants for nomination for County officers. The candidates whose names are not on the slate picked out by editor Kurtz would have good grounds for suit to recover the amount invested.

A. M. Butler, of Howard township, made one of the best speeches at the meeting. He was not scheduled as one of the important speakers, but what he had to say was more to the point than the remarks of the bosses, the near-bosses and the bosslets. Mr. Butler told the party bosses to get away from the old plan of taking the candidates from Bellefonte, and then telling the country Democrats to elect them. As a warning he significantly recalled the remarks of a former Democratic County Chairman who once informed his committee that it was not the business of the country people as to who were to be nominated, that their business was to elect the nominees.

A side-light on the "harmony" program, was the conspicuous silence of ex-Sheriff Miles Walker, who no longer preaches Democratic reform, although less than one year ago he was talking night and day in favor of throwing out all the old Democratic leaders. Chairman Kimport voted at Harrisburg in line with Walker's preaching at home, but Walker was one of the loudest in arging that the meeting on Tuesday adjourn without giving Kimport an indorsement.

Delightful Moonlight Picnic.

Miss Margaret Heverly, one of the popular young ladies at Blanchard, gave a moonlight picnic at the home of her uncle, C. A. Williams, on Thursday evening, August 10, for her friends at Blanchard, Howard and Beech Creek. The young folks thoroughly enjoyed themselves with games and music and later they were served with a royal lunch which had been prepared by Mrs. Williams. Following this they were favored with some excellent music by Dane Goodwin, the well known musician, and Misses Olive Gardner and Mae Hunter. The picnic broke up about 12 o'clock, all present reporting having had a most enjoyable evening and expressing the wish that they might meet many times on such happy occasions. The young ladies in attendance included Misses Mabel Page, Mae Hunter, Olive Gardner, Florence Confer, Mary Smith, Nellie Smith, Lulu Bechdel, Mary Page, Anna Confer, Mary Weirick, Gertrude Thomas, Alice Patterson, Marian Courter, Mae Bowes, Carrie Fore and Gertrude and Myrtle Sweesy, the latter two from Emporium, and Bertha Askey, from Dakota, Illinois. The young gentlemen present included George Long, Joseph DeLong, Clair Leathers, Ronald Welch, Earl Bittner, Victor Ridge, Dean Goodwin, Floyd Bechdel, Al. Kline, Horace Schenck, Charles Robb, Harold Schenck, Norris Harter, Lonnie Miller, George DeLong, George Davis, Harry Muffly, William Bowes, Ralph Miller, Charles Heverly, Clyde Heverly and Professor Brey, the last named from Philadelphia.

Orchard Inspection in Boggs.

Reference was made in "The Republican" a few weeks ago to the orchard inspection work being carried on in Walker township. Since the completion of the work there Boggs township has been taken up and the inspections are progressing most satisfactorily. The inspector expects to finish in that township in a short time. The invitation is always open to owners of orchards to ask such questions as may affect their fruit trees. The service of the Division of Zoology, State Department of Agriculture, is free, and the representative, Mr. T. C. Foster, is always ready to render help when asked while on his visits to the orchards.

Warrants Issued for Lynchers.

Thirteen warrants have been issued for the arrest of the ring-leaders in the lynching of Zachariah Walker, colored, at Coatesville, Pa., on Sunday night, last. Walker shot and killed a private policeman. A mob took Walker from the Coatesville hospital and carried him to a field, where he was thrown onto a pile of fence rails and burned to a crisp. State constabulary are in charge at Coatesville. Governor Tener has ordered that a thorough investigation be made and that every person implicated in the lynching be arrested.

State College Student Drowned.

Rudolph Joerg, a son of Postmaster Martin Joerg, of Coudersport, and a student at State College, was drowned on Sunday, last, near Carlton Place, Ontario, by the capsizing of a canoe in which he was riding with two young ladies. The latter also were drowned.

Mrs. Jennie Pierpont Dead.

Word was received in Bellefonte yesterday of the death in Philadelphia, of Mrs. Jennie Reynolds Pierpont. Deceased was a daughter of the late Thomas Reynolds and at one time resided in Bellefonte. She had been in failing health for the last year.

RATES ADVANCED FOR BUSINESS MEN'S PICNIC

Central Railroad Orders Boost of 10 and 5 Cents to Hecla Park.

PROGRAM FOR OUTING

Tyrone Band Engaged—Tyrone and Philipsburg Baseball Teams Play in Afternoon—Lock Haven Orchestra in Dancing Pavilion.

The Central Railroad Company of Pennsylvania this week announced an advance of 10 cents in excursion rates between Bellefonte and Hecla Park, also between Mill Hall and Hecla Park, on the occasion of this year's Business Men's Picnic, which will be held on Tuesday, next, August 22. The advanced rates, it was explained, will apply only to the day of this picnic. Heretofore the round trip rate between Bellefonte and the picnic grounds has been 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children, while the round trip rate from Mill Hall has been 35 cents and 20 cents. The excursion round trip rate for this year's picnic will be 35 and 20 cents from Bellefonte, and 45 and 25 cents from Mill Hall.

Accompanying the announcement was a statement issued by the Executive Committee of the picnic association, as follows:

"At the last meeting of the Executive Committee of the Association, the Central R. R. Co. advised that by reason of the expense incident to handling this large picnic, the business would not be attractive to them at the old rates of fare and asked for the concurrence of the Association in a slight advance in the excursion rates. It was proposed to increase these rates 10 cents from Bellefonte and Mill Hall to the Park, and return. In other words, where the rate had been 35 cents and 20 cents from Mill Hall, and 25 cents and 15 cents from Bellefonte, the rates should be made 45 and 25 cents from Mill Hall, and 35 and 20 cents from Bellefonte. A sub-committee composed of the officers of the Association and a few of the members, after going over the matter with a representative of the railroad company who presented facts and detailed figures, which seemed to justify their position, and it being pointed out that rates from both Bellefonte and Lock Haven to other picnic parks of practically the same or of less distance, were about double those charged to Hecla Park, the subcommittee had no hesitancy in saying to the full committee that the grounds on which the company based its claim for the advance seemed to be well founded and recommended that the concurrence asked for by the railroad should be granted. It was made plain to the Association, the railroad could not consistently agree to handle this large gathering at the old rates of fares, and it was also shown that the company financing this picnic, as they have for fifteen years, assumed all risks of loss by unfavorable weather conditions and the like. In this situation the Executive Committee felt it was justified in saying to the railroad company, their attitude was not an unreasonable one particularly as it was shown the picnic never had been specially attractive to the company from a revenue standpoint. The advance rates named however will be used only on the day of the Business Men's Picnic; former rates being applied account of other gatherings at the Park, such as Sunday School picnics."

The program of attractions for the picnic was also made public. The Pennsylvania Railroad band from Tyrone has been engaged for the day. There will be two base ball games, one in the morning between teams from Bellefonte and Lock Haven, and one in the afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, between Tyrone and Philipsburg. The complete program for the day follows:

Concert, Tyrone band, 9.30, a. m.

Base ball, Bellefonte vs. Lock Haven, 11.00.

Shooting contest, Centre vs. Clinton county; prize—Remington pump gun, 11.30.

100 yard dash, for men; prizes—shoes, sweater and watch fob, 11.30.

50 yard dash, for boys; prizes—tennis racket, tennis shoes, 11.45.

25 yard handkerchief race, for girls; prizes—parasol, handkerchiefs, 12.00 noon.

Swimming race; prize—bathing suit, 1.30.

Diving contest; prize - $1.00, 2.15.

Cracker race, for boys; prize—box candy, 2.30.

Base ball, Tyrone vs. Philipsburg, 2.30.

Dancing from 9.30 a. m. to 10.00 p. m. music by Lock Haven orchestra.

Band concerts every hour.

WM. J. DORWORTH'S BRIDE SHOCKED BY LIGHTNING

Was in Room of House at Pinnacle, N. C., Struck by Fiery Bolt.

WAS BADLY INJURED

One Side of Her Body Partially Paralyzed Second Bolt of Lighting Hurls Husband Across Room—Jewelry on Dressing Table Melted.

Word received yesterday from William J. Dorworth told of a thrilling experience in which he and his bride of a few months figured a day or two ago at Pinnacle, North Carolina, and as a result of which his wife is partially paralyzed and suffering intensely from shock. Mr. Dorworth and his wife were dressing in their room in a boarding house, at Pinnacle, a few miles from Greensboro, when a severe storm came up. Mrs. Dorworth happened to be standing nearby a dressing table when suddenly there was a violent clap of thunder, accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning. Turning around Mr. Dorworth was horrified to see his wife enveloped in a blue flame and tottering as if about to fall. He hurried to her side and seized her in his arms, but before he could be of any further assistance there was a second flash of lightning and he was hurled violently across the room. Mr. Dorworth was merely stunned and soon was able to carry his wife from the house. It was found that the shock had almost completely deafened her and that her one side was partially paralyzed. In addition she was in a state of utter collapse from shock. At the time the letter was written she had partially recovered her hearing, although she still experienced a pronounced numbness in her one side.

After he had carried his wife to a place of safety, Mr. Dorworth returned to the house. He discovered that the lightning had struck the building, demolishing one side of it. He also found that one end of his wife's dressing table had been splintered by the lightning and that several articles of jewelry, which had been placed in a box on the dresser, had been melted.

One on 'Squire Keichline.

Squire Keichline is a busy man these days, pushing his candidacy for Democratic nomination for District Attorney and incidentally trying to undermine the candidacy of J. Kennedy Johnston and D. Paul Fortney, two of his party rivals. In fact, the 'Squire is so busy buttonholeing visitors to town that a day or two ago he unwittingly poured a Democratic tale into a Republican ear. It will not be until the Squire reads this that he will learn of his blunder. A day or two ago 'Squire Keichline was hustling about town, trying to hand one of his campaign cards to every fellow he met, when suddenly his eye fell upon a Republican from Howard seated in the Garman House. 'Squire Keichline took it for granted that the man from Howard was a Democrat and at once proceeded to give him the glad hand.

"Do you know," remarked 'Squire Keichline confidentially, "that I've been all over the county and I'm glad to find that we're harmonized."

"Yes," mildly replied the man from Howard, quick to see the 'Squire's blunder and concluding to get a little fun out of it.

"Yes, sir, I believe our party's harmonized," continued 'Squire Keichline, by this time gradually producing one of his campaign cards.

"You think you'll be nominated, all right?" innocently inquired the man from Howard.

'Squire Keichline was visibly pleased. His countenance showed it. Doubly sure by this time that he was confiding in not only a Democrat, but a Democrat from 'way back, 'Squire Keichline edged his chair a little bit closer and eloquently whispered, that is, as eloquently as one could whisper:

"That's what they tell me. I've been all over the County and the assurances I have received give me every reason to expect to be nominated."

"Good enough," blandly remarked the man from Howard.

"Have one of my cards," said 'Squire Keichline, as he explained that he would have to be going.

"Goodbye, I'm glad our party is harmonized," said the man from Howard, who by this time was on the verge of an apoplectic fit trying to keep from bursting out laughing.

S. D. Ray on Tuesday surrendered and joined the ranks of the automobilists. He purchased from Dr. Sebring the Franklin car, formerly owned by Dr. R. H. G. Hayes.

GRANGERS READY FOR PICNIC; SEP. 9 TO 15

Expect Big Attendance at Annual Exhibition at Centre Hall.

STATE'S FINE DISPLAY

College Will Send Elaborate Exhibit of Stock, Grain, Fruit, Etc—Good Roads Train Speakers to Address Meetings—Other Features.

Centre County grangers are now busily engaged in planning for their annual picnic at Centre Hall, which this year will be held September 9 to 15. While the official program has not as yet been announced, it is stated by the management that this year's picnic will surpass those of former years and that all indications point to a record-breaking attendance. This will be the thirty-eighth encampment and exhibition of the Patrons of Husbandry of Central Pennsylvania.

It is expected that the display of livestock, grain, fruits, etc., from the Pennsylvania State College will be the most elaborate ever sent out from that institution. While plans have not matured, it is understood that a novel feature this year will be the introduction and discussion of good roads subjects. It is not improbable that a number of the speakers who accompanied the good roads special train will be present and address meetings of the grangers.

Leonard Rhone is chairman of the committee having the big picnic in charge. Associated with him are George Gingrich and G. L. Goodhart.

NECK BROKEN BY FALL

Philipsburg Carpenter Killed by Odd Accident at His Home.

John H. Deer, a well known carpenter of Philipsburg, met his death on Thursday night shortly after 9 o'clock at his home on South Front and Beaver streets under very sad circumstances, says the "Journal" of that town. He had worked during the day, came home for supper, and then went down town, returning about 8 o'clock and soon after going to bed. His wife had gone over to a neighbors for a few moments, and returning sat down on the front steps. Soon after she heard a peculiar noise, and going in found her husband had fallen down the stairs, and discovering that he seemed perfectly helpless and unconscious, Dr. C. E. McGirk and John A. Dale, nearby at the time, were immediately summoned. They made the sad discovery that in the fall his neck was broken. His heart had not yet failed, but every effort to sustain its action failed and in five minutes death ensued.

The deceased was born at Milton, Pa., and was aged 51 years, 10 months and 21 days. He had resided in Philipsburg about 23 years. Besides his wife he is survived by two daughters, viz: Mrs. Lewis Russ, of Harrisburg, and Mrs. Howard Frank, of Clymer. Three sisters also survive.

School Announcement.

Bellefonte, August 14, 1911.

To the Patrons:—

All departments of the public schools will open on Monday, September 4th. Entrance examinations will be held in the New Building, Thursday, August 31st, beginning at nine o'clock in the morning.

The admission of beginners, according to the recent law, will be confined to the first two weeks of the term, and to the first two weeks following the first day of January. Children becoming six years of age between the beginning of the term and the first of January will be admitted during the first two weeks, and those becoming six between the first of January and the end of the year, will come in the first two weeks of January.

The vacancies in the high school have been filled by the following persons:

Miss Maud C. Bear, M. A., of Rock Island, Illinois, a graduate of Augustana College, and has taken courses at Wellesley College, The Sorbonne, Paris, and in Germany, to be instructor in Latin and German.

Mr. Earl E. Hinman, B. S., of Monroeton, Pa., a graduate of Bucknell University, and has taught one year in New York City, to be instructor in Science and Athletics.

Mr. Earl C. Musser, B. A., of Pine Grove, Pa., a graduate of Susquehanna University, principal of the Sheffield high school, recently teacher, in the high school at Greenville, Pa., to be instructor in History.

Very respectfully,

JONAS E. WAGNER.

THE VAGRANT PROBLEM

Railroads Endeavoring to Stamp Out Trespassing by Tramps.

Millions are being donated to insure peace between nations, but the number of lives lost in wars today, with fighting continually going on in some corner of the world, is as nothing compared with he annual record of fatalities due to respassing on American railroads.

Thousands of lives are sacrificed every year as the result of trespassing on railroad property. Ignorance or carelessness on the part of the trespasser is responsible for most of this. The railroads are bending every effort to cut down the awful toll of death by posting signs and maintaining police patrol, but they will never be completely successful without the co-operation of the general public.

Every densely populated industrial center near a railroad is a death center. The working classes in crowded districts, and tramps, furnish the majority of victims. Railroads say people must be taught to have more respect for their lives and safety.

With education of this kind in view, the Pennsylvania Railroad is preparing pamphlets in eight or nine languages. These will be distributed in schools with instructions to the pupils to take them into their homes. The Board of Education of the State of Pennsylvania has promised its aid, and similar boards in other States will be asked to lend their support in disseminating this literature and having it read aloud in classes.

The assistance of clergymen has been solicited, and from hundreds of pulpits the danger of trespassing has been preached. From the good roads trains run by the Pennsylvania Railroad through rural districts, and in the farmers granges the warning has been sounded.

In 1905 it was estimated that there were 500,000 tramps in the United States and that their depredations cost the railroads $25,000,000, annually. At that time the Pennsylvania Railroad instituted a vigorous campaign against these marauding nomads that swarm over the country every Spring, pillaging, terrifying housewives, lighting fires that wreak untold damage, and sometimes committing murder when their right to live as they please at the expense of society is challenged. As a result of this, and the educational campaign, the number of persons killed while trespassing on the railroad's property in violation of the law, has been gradually reduced from 887 in 1905 to 585 in 1910, and the number of injured has fallen from 794 to 582 in the same time. To put these figures in another way; in 1905 the railroad was killing trespassers at the rate of three a day for five months of the year, and two a day for the remaining seven months, while in 1910 the number sacrificed had decreased to two a day for seven months, and one a day for the other five. The number of injured is but slightly less.

This record shows that the Pennsylvania's efforts have produced results, but the number of trespassers killed and injured each year is still appalling. Thus far the railroads have done the most towards checking this useless waste of life. They are perhaps the greatest sufferers from the tramp evil, and they are willing to do all in their power to stamp it out, but this cannot be accomplished until the citizen realizes the seriousness of the matter and takes his part in the campaign.

The New York State Board of Charities estimates that tramps have cost that State $2,000,000 annually for the past two years. This is exclusive of damage done to private property, and includes only the money spent in almhouses and by charitable organizations, and in prosecuting and keeping tramps in penal institutions. The question touches every citizen vitally, for it means that he has contributed taxes towards this $2,000,000 which went to pay the tramp bill.

Writers who have studied the problem agree that the tramp could not exist without the railroads. They afford a means for "beating his way" from place to place that makes it possible for him to live. No one would maintain however, that the railroads are responsible for the tramp. They do not create him. He is one of the excrescences on the social body for which society is responsible. Yet thus far the railroads have done the most towards the country of this dangerous pest. Too often society takes the attitude expressed in the following quotation from the news columns of a paper in a small New Jersey town.

After citing several instances of tramp violence the reporter says: "Yesterday the police of both the Third and Sixth Precincts were given orders to boost all tramps and suspicious and unwashed characters out of their bailiwicks."

No doubt the police obeyed orders. The vagrants were driven to the next town to continue their outrages until once more forced to move on. When they are arrested they are usually given a light or a suspended sentence in order to avoid the cost of keeping them.

From time to time the railroads have succeeded in enlisting the co-operation of various communities in punishing tramps with very good results, but instances of this zeal on the part of municipalities have been too sporadic to accomplish any permanent good.

The vagrant problem has been solved in other countries, notably in Switzerland, by establishing labor colonies—some for forced and some for voluntary labor. If the tramp is a confirmed loafer who does not want to earn his livelihood, he is sent to one of the former, while if he is honestly seeking employment without success, he is sent to one of the latter institutions where he is paid wages until other work can be found for him.

A bill providing for a farm of this nature was recently passed by the New York State Legislature. Like bills have been introduced in four other States. It has been objected that the labor unions would fight the sale of products from a labor colony, but such products could be used to support the other State institutions without encountering this obstacle if it exists. The chief reason for the non-passage of these bills is that the legislatures are afraid of the expense involved. The figures issued by the New York State Board of Charities show clearly that this is false economy. The tramp evil costs the taxpayers of that State $2,000,000 a year. This gives an idea on which to base the expenditures of other States. Adequate labor colonies could be established for less than this, and if they failed to support themselves, which is unlikely, it would take nearly so vast a sum to keep them up.

Besides saving the public money these colonies would save countless lives, and would restore many waifs now a burden on society to the ranks of useful and productive workers.

Until this country follows the lead of Europe in the matter of legislation to check vagrancy there can be no satisfactory cure for the evil, but if the small communities will join the railroads in punishing offenders, instead of passing them along, it will be greatly ameliorated. By doing this, and by aiding the railroads in their campaign to educate the public against trespassing, more loss of life will be averted than by establishing world peace.

Recalled Stirring Times.

Captain John C. Delaney, State Factory Inspector, several days ago came across a copy of the recent issue of "The Republican" containing a most interesting article made up of despatches from the battle-field at Gettysburg, telling of the progress of the conflict between the North and South during the three days of fighting. The article was one of the most intensely interesting and graphic we have ever come across and it was a pleasure to reproduce it in our columns. There was such a demandifor copies of the paper containing the article that our edition was completely exhausted. Captain Delaney, learning of the article, wrote to us asking that he might have a copy of the paper and explaining that he desired to place it in his scrap-book of events of the Civil war. After some effort we finally secured a copy and mailed it to him at Harrisburg. Acknowledging receipt of the paper, Captain Delaney wrote the following:

Harrisburg, August 11, 1911.

MY DEAR MR. DORWORTH:—This morning's mail brought me the copy of your paper, "The Republican," I wrote you for. Accept my sincere thanks for the same. I have read the Gettysburg despatches again and again, and they thrill every fibre in me. What memories they have awakened would fill every page of "The Republican", could I pen them as fast as the panorama passes before my mind's eye. But then, those thrilling events occured night unto the half century ago and they have been illuminated and re-illuminated until it seems impossible to find anything new on those three history-making days. Thanking you again and again, Your sincerely,

J. C. DELANEY.

Enforce a Spitting Law.

Dr. Samuel Dixon, head of the State health department, requests the authorities in the cities and towns of the state to enforce the anti-spitting law. This law prohibits spitting in public places and has been enforced in a number of cities with excellent results. The person who expectorates on the sidewalk, in the street cars, at places of public entertainment is an offensive individual and should be suppressed. Spitting in public is responsible for the spread of certain diseases therefore the health authorities are desirous of putting a stop to the filthy habit.

Is it to be Washington, Lincoln and Taft?

(Editorial from "The Christian Work and Evangelist.)

It looks so just now. Many had hoped that it was to be Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt. All the opportunities were there to meet the man of great soul. But when the day came Mr. Roosevelt had not the greatness to rise to it, and it passed him by for a greater. When the nation, in the sure process of divine evolution, passed forever out of the stage of militarism Mr. Roosevelt would not take the step. While during the last ten years all the prophets and statesmen and educators have been more and more thinking in terms of arbitration, Mr. Roosevelt has been the one lone great figure putting trust in the old methods of guns and distrusting arbitration. When the one great moment of this new century came, and the two great Anglo-Saxon nations, by a great flood of thought and feeling, showed themselves ready to pass from the old way of war to the new way of law, Mr. Roosevelt had the one great opportunity of his lifetime to rise to the stature of Washington and Lincoln. He could have become the leader in this, which is to be the third great historic event in the nation's life—first, the founding of the nation; second, the preservation of the nation; third, the nation binding all other nations to it by cords of good-will and brotherhood. He could have spoken to thousands from town to town. He could have used "The Outlook" as the organ of the new and universal way. He could have gone to Washington and exerted great influence there. But during all the gathering momentum of the new order he remained silent while others led, and when the great prophet came and spoke the word which awoke a thrill of response in all Britain and America he alone of all great men spoke out against the prophet's message—the one lone voice declaring arbitration of all international differences not only impossible, but undesirable, and even claiming that it were better that individuals took justice into their own hands, as well as nations. Perhaps no word has met with so little response as this lone, reactionary cry. His calling the President of the United States and all the others—now by far the majority of leaders in the nation's life—"false peace advocates" has only brought sympathy to Mr. Taft and contempt for Mr. Roosevelt. But, however this may be, Mr. Roosevelt's opportunity as leader in the new international relationships of nations has gone by forever, and a greater has risen to take the lead.

Anyone who has watched Mr. Taft's progress during the last two years cannot have failed to have observed not only his expanding powers, but his growing grasp upon what are the commanding and inevitable questions of our day. The one inevitable and compelling problem of our time is the new international relationships. Anyone who has watched the press of the world for ten years has observed how this question has spread from page to page, until today it is the outstanding news of all journals, even in Germany. A new international consciousness is being born. It is stirring in the heart of all the nations. Many prophets, statesmen, editors, teachers and business men have seen this. Mr. Taft was the first President of the United States, perhaps the first ruler of any nation, to see it, and suddenly rose from the routine of Presidential duties to become the spokesman and leader of the nations in their new progress toward unity. It was greatness to see that this was the one commanding question of the day. But it was even more a mark of high capacity for leadership that he should point out the way to the nations. He did so by a declaration that went around the world as an electric wave of joy—that the time has come for nations to include all their disputes in arbitration treaties, even those including vital honor and territory. The immediate response to this remark from the two great Anglo-Saxon nations shows how ready the people are, how far they have gone. Mr. Roosevelt is the only voice of importance we have seen lifted against it, with the exception of a few other extreme militarists of Germany. But he might as well lift up his voice against democracy as against the new internationalism. It is growing faster than democracy ever grew. Into the hearts of the people sank these words of the great President. Mr. Carnegie only voiced the thought of all the people when he said: "President Taft was the first among rulers to unfurl the banner of unrestricted international judicial arbitration of all disputes, and thousands of years hence his will be one of the few names posterity will still preserve as the man of our century or all centuries who did most to banish the last, but the foulest, blot upon our so-called civilization, provided he stands, as Lincoln did, devoted to the cause he has made his own, of which the writer entertains no shadow of doubts."

But Mr. Taft has gone on with seven-league strides. Hardly had the nation recovered from this great announcement when he did a still greater thing, and declared that he was ready to offer such an unlimited treaty to our great sister nation, Great Britain. The announcement met with a response from all parties in Great Britain that no proposal has received for ages. From the members of the government, from Parliament, from all the press, from all the churches, from the business organizations came such a welcome that work upon the treaty was at once begun. It has met with no serious opposition, except Mr. Roosevelt's unfortunate editorial and Memorial Day speech. The masterly reply to this reactionary position came in President Taft's speech at Marion, Ind., July 3. The President said:

"Objection has been made that an agreement to arbitrate a question of national honor ought not to be entered into, for the reason that when one's honor is affected one will never consent to have the question arbitrated, and therefore that to agree to do so in advance is to agree to do something that one will not be willing to do and that one does not intend to do, and therefore it savors of hypocrisy, and ought not to be adopted as a national policy. I cannot concede the premises of this argument. I look upon a treaty of this sort as a self-denying ordinance, as a self-restricting obligation.

"It seems to be of the same character as the Constitution, which the people as a whole set up, and in which they imposed checks upon their own power and limitations upon the method by which they exercize the ultimate sovereignty which is in them. It is not that they do not recognize that when the temptation comes to exercize arbitrary power they will not feel like exercizing it, but it is that they deliberately impose those limitations upon their own action with the intention that they shall be effective however averse they may be to yield to them when the occasion arises for their enforcement."

Of course, the President's position is right and unanswerable. Here are his remarkable words, uttered at Bull Run, July 21:

"I am glad to announce here today that as England has agreed to enter into an arbitration treaty with the United States, France has signified her willingness to enter the same treaty. Both treaties will be signed within ten days, and I expect to be able to announce within a few days that three other nations have entered into the agreement. This news I bring to the veterans of a real war because I know they will most appreciate permanent peace."

Surely it looks like Washington, Lincoln and Taft.

TWICE TOLD TESTIMONY

Bellefonte People Are Doing All They Can For Fellow Sufferers.

Bellefonte testimony has been published to prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills to others in Bellefonte who suffer from bad backs and kidney ills. Lest any sufferer, doubt that the cures made by Doan's Kidney Pills are thorough and lasting, we produce confirmed proof—statements from Bellefonte people saying that the cures they told of years ago were permanent. Here's a Bellefonte case:

Mrs. James Corl, 361 E. Bishop St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: A member of my family used Doan's Kidney Pills in 1907, procuring them from Green's Pharmacy Co. and a complete cure of kidney complaint was effected. At that time we publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills and as there has been no return attack of the trouble, we again give this remedy a word of praise. You are welcome to publish this statement for the benefit of other kidney sufferers."

Sweetening the Soil.

In our agriculture today we are probably chiefly concerned in the use of lime to make soils sweet.

The tendency of land is to become acrid because the available lime leaches out of it. When there is not enough lime in the soil to neutralize the acid the soil becomes sour and unfriendly to clover and alfalfa, and in some degree to many other plants. The deficiency of lime is not confined to areas outside of our limestone belts, but may be found in some of our old limestone valleys. The available lime has gone out of the land and harmful acids accumulate. The result is seen in increasing difficulty in securing good growths of clover. Where sorrel, plantain and red-top thrive better than clover, then there is some deficiency in lime.

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded D. D. D., can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhestatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—We know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch.

Because—D. D. D. starts the cure at the foundation of the trouble.

Because—It cleanses, soothes and heals the skin.

Because—It enables Nature to repair the ravages of disease.

Because—The records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of the most serious cases show that D. D. D. is today recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema Cure.

Woe Is His.

First.—My wife is my boss. I shall not deny.

Second.—She maketh me to lie down behind the bed when swell company comes, and she leadeth me behind her up Main street.

Third.—She restoreth my pocketbook after she has spent all of its contents for stylish skirts and theater tickets, and she leadeth me up the main aisle at church for her new hat's sake.

Fourth.—Yea, though I walk more than half the night through dark rooms with a crying baby I will get no rest, for she is behind me; her broomstick and her hatpin they do everything else but comfort me.

Fifth.—She prepareth a cold snack for me, then maketh a bee line for an aid society supper. She anointeth my head with the rolling pin occasionally. My arms runneth over with the bundles before she is half done with her shopping.

Sixth.—Surely her dressmaker's and milliner's bills shall follow me all the days of her life, and I will dwell in the house of my wife forever.—Urich (Mo.) Herald.

Signaling at Sea.

The custom of signaling at sea by means of various colored flags is very ancient, and the method seems to have been brought to a degree of development bordering very closely on perfection. Many people have been astonished at the length of messages conveyed in a few moments and with the use of but half a dozen flags in various combinations, and when the extent of the language and the complexity of many necessary messages are considered the eighteen flags in the signal flag locker seem very inadequate. However, it must be remembered that the signal code utilizes a sort of shorthand, and many long messages, known to be of frequent occurrence, have been contracted to a single showing of flags in a given combination. The number of flags hoisted when a signal is made never exceeds four. With the eighteen flags of various colors, using four for each signal, no fewer than 78,642 combinations can be made.

An English Ghost.

A Westmoreland ghost used to haunt the shores of Windermere, where the Lowthers from time immemorial have been lords of the lake—the "crier of Claife." One tempestuous night in prereformation times a cry was heard across the water by the ferryman at the Nab inn—"A boat!" The ferryman, against all his cronies' persuasions at the inn, set out. After many hours he reached the Nab again, his boat dragged down by some unseen weight and himself with hair on end, a raving lunatic. Soon he died, and every stormy night his wraith was heard in agonized shrieks across from Claife till at last the resident monk of Furness was sought in his retreat on Lady Holm and persuaded to "lay" the unhappy spirit, which he duly did. Harriet Martineau and others tell the tale.—London Chronicle.

The Weaker Sex.

The young woman had spent a busy day.

She had browbeaten fourteen sales people, bullyragged a floorwalker, argued victoriously with a milliner, laid down the law to a modiste, nipped in the bud a taxi chauffeur's attempt to overcharge her, made a street car conductor stop the car in the middle of a block for her, discharged her maid and engaged another and otherwise refused to allow herself to be imposed upon.

Yet she did not smile that evening when a young man begged:

"Let me be your protector through life!"—Life.

New Angle on Help.

"Why did you inquire so particularly into the wardrobe of that girl you just hired?" asked one of two women who were leaving an employment agency.

"To find out how carefully she will guard against burglars," said the other. "My experience has been that a girl who has nice things of her own will lock up more securely at night and keep a sharper eye out for sneak thieves in the daytime than one who has nothing of value to lose."—New York Press.

She Was Right.

"How effusively sweet that Mrs. Blondey is to you, Jonesey," said Witherell. "What's up? Any tender little romance there?"

"No, indeed. Why, that woman hates me," said Jonesey.

"She doesn't show it," said Witherell.

"No, but she knows that I know how old she is. We were both born on the same day," said Jonesey, "and she's afraid I'll tell somebody."—Harper's Weekly.

The First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse was erected at Pharos, near Alexandria, in Egypt. It was finished in 285 B. C. Its height was 550 feet, and the light, which was kept burning on top at night, was visible forty-one miles away. This tower existed for some 1,600 years, when it was destroyed by an earthquake.

The Idea.

"Can a married man acquire happiness?"

"Sure! You don't think that bachelors are the only ones that die, do you?"—Toledo Blade.

"Pa," said Freddy, "what is a social scale?"

"Generally speaking," replied pa, "it's a place where they weigh money."

There is an oblique way of reproof which takes off from the sharpness of it.—Steele.

A Curious Swiss Custom.

In one part of the canton of Ticino, Switzerland, a very quaint marriage ceremony prevails. The bridegroom dresses in his "Sunday best" and, accompanied by as many friends and relatives as he can muster for the fete, goes to claim his bride. Finding the door locked, he demands admittance. The inmates ask him his business, and he solicits the hand of his chosen maiden. If his answer is deemed satisfactory he is successively introduced to a number of matrons and maids, some perhaps deformed and others old and ugly. Then he is presented to some large dolls, all of whom he rejects with scorn amid general merriment. The bridegroom, whose temper is sometimes sorely tried, is then informed that his ladylove is absent and is invited to come in and see for himself. He enters and searches from room to room until he finds her in her bridal dress ready to go to church. Then all his anxiety is at an end, and the nuptials are duly celebrated.

The Man Guessed Right.

In a church at Amsterdam there is a very ancient funeral monument of white marble on which are engraved a pair of slippers of a very singular kind with this inscription, "Effen Nyt," which means "exactly," and the story of this singularity is this: A man who was very rich, but who was a bon vivant, took it into his head that he was to live a certain number of years and no longer. Under the impression of this idea he calculated that if he spent so much a year his estate and his life would expire together. It happened that he was not mistaken in either of his calculations; he died precisely at that time which he had presented to himself in fancy and had then brought his fortune to such a predicament that after the paying of his debts he had nothing left but a pair of slippers. His relations buried him in a creditable manner and had the slippers carved on his tomb with the above laconic advice.—Tales and Anecdotes.

A Curious Tea Case.

A correspondent of the British Medical Journal gives an account of the curious symptoms he experienced after drinking tea. He writes: "Whenever I take tea I go through a regular procession of events most distressing and stultifying. Shortly, these are as follows: Within fifteen minutes of walking movement seems to be essential) I feel hot about the scalp and knees. The former feels as if pepper were dusted all over it. Then I practically lose my sight and hearing and if in conversation cannot say more than 'yes' or 'no' because I am so faint and listless; then I lose the power of walking quite straight and choose the wall side of the path. Lastly I break out into a general perspiration, and within forty-five minutes I return to my senses." This correspondent adds that he has consulted many medical men, but has never found any means of relief.

When a Peanut Sprouts.

"Few persons are perhaps aware that a thing of beauty is a common peanut plant growing singly in a six or eight inch pot and grown indoors during the colder weather," said a florist. "Kept in a warm room or by the kitchen stove, a peanut kernel planted in a pot of loose mellow loam and only moderately moistened will soon germinate and grow up into a beautiful plant, extending its branches over the pot. The leaves close together like the leaves of a book on the approach of night or when a shower begins to fall upon them. The plant bears tiny yellow flowers. There is nothing else just like it."

Lengthy and Monotonous.

One of the most curious contracts entered into by an operatic artist was that agreed to by Farinelli. When he visited Spain, Philip V. was suffering from mental depression, from which nothing aroused him until the arrival of Farinelli. The queen was so delighted to see her royal spouse once more interested that she engaged Farinelli at a salary of $10,000 to remain in Madrid. This he did, singing the same four songs to the king every night for ten years.

An Old Smallpox Cure.

The following primitive "cure" for smallpox was discovered by the Leytonstone (England) guardians in one of their registers for the year 1700: "Take thirty to forty live toads and burn them to cinders in a new pot, then crush into a fine black powder. Dose for smallpox, three ounces."

The virtue of justice consists in moderation as regulated by wisdom.—Aristotle.

What's the Matter With Thomas?

There are some names which seem peculiarly suited to royalty; Louis, for instance, has a kingly sound. Francis George, Henry in both spellings, Charles, William, Edward and James all have served their turn. Johns there have been, and Stephens. I remember a Robert in Sicily and a Peter in Russia and Servia. Frederick has often worn the crown, and royal honors are even now paid to Ferdinand in Bulgaria. But was there ever, anywhere, a king named Thomas? Oscars and even Haakens ascend the dais, but ever through all the centuries Thomas remains the subject, sometimes struggling up to a bishopric or an earldom, but never attaining the crown. Nicholases wear the imperial purple; Godfreys lord it over Jerusalem; Alexis struts in ermine; Alexanders fare forth to conquest; Julius and Leo don the triple crown, but Thomas, poor plebeian Thomas, has never a crown to his name. Now tell me, you who are wise in the occult influence of names, what is the matter with Tom?—London Idler.

Washington as a Humorist.

While president Washington's humor seemed to find expression in the diplomacy of self protection. A French revolutionist came to him for a general testimonial, which Washington did not care to grant, yet he did not wish to give offense to the French by a curt refusal, so he wrote an evasive card worthy of Lincoln—"C. Volney needs no recommendation from G. Washington."

After Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown Washington treated him with high consideration. At a dinner given in honor of the distinguished prisoner Rochambeau proposed "The United States" as his toast; Washington responded with "The king of France;" Cornwallis, perforce, faintly suggested "His majesty," when Washington startled them all by announcing, "The king of England—may he stay there!" with a ready wit that made even Cornwallis laugh.—Century.

Cards and Card Playing.

In a paper in the Journal of the Royal Society of Arts Professor H. Cheney, discussing the part played by gambling in magic, observes: "The use of cards is said to be derived from the Turot cards, which were originally employed for occult purposes. The legend which ascribes the invention of cards to the purpose of amusing a mad king does not seem at all a sufficient explanation, and there is in addition the fact that cards of a kind existed before the said king. In further support of this idea the well known practice of telling fortunes by cards may probably be regarded as a survival of a regular form of divination by such means. It seems, in fact, that card playing for stakes is a mere development of a ceremony in which individuals consulting the oracle decided to abide by its pronouncements as to the holding of disputed property.

Meteors and the Atmosphere.

One of the most useful results arising from the study of sporadic meteors is the light thrown upon the question of the height of the atmosphere, since it is the friction of the air that sets them on fire, and if their elevation is known at the moment of their first appearance the probable height of the atmosphere can be calculated. On Aug. 11, 1909, a brilliant meteor happened to impress its picture simultaneously on three photographic plates, at Tashkend, Iskander and Tschimgan, in Russian Turkestan. The distances between these places furnished base lines from which the height could be deduced. The calculation shows that the meteor first appeared at a height of 69.45 miles above the earth and disappeared at fifty miles.

The Orange In Spain.

It is considered a very healthful thing to eat an orange before breakfast. But who can eat an orange well? One must go to Spain to see that done. The senorita cuts off the rind with her silver knife, then, putting her fork into the peeled fruit, she detaches every morsel with her pearly teeth and continues to eat the orange without losing a drop of the juice and lays down the core with the fork still in it.

Unpalatable.

The Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon was fond of a joke, and his keen wit was, moreover, based on sterling common sense. One day he remarked to one of his sons:

"Can you tell me the reason why the lions didn't eat Daniel?"

"No, sir. Why was it?"

"Because the most of him was backbone and the rest was grit."—Youth's Companion.

Proposed amendments to the Constitution submitted to the citizens of this Commonwealth for their approval or rejection, by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and published by order of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in pursuance of Article XVIII of the Constitution.

Number One.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so as to consolidate the courts of common pleas of Allegheny County.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:

That section six of article five be amended by striking out the said section, and inserting in place thereof the following:

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three such three judges shall compose a distinct and separate court as aforesaid, which shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court, and each court, to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said courts. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amendment to Article Nine, Section Eight.

Section 2. Amend section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:—

"Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation," so as to read as follows:—

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenue in excess of the interest on said debt or debts and of the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted: Provided, That a sinking fund for their cancellation shall be established and maintained.

Early Combines and Corners.

"Engrossing" was an offense punishable in England by fine and imprisonment, and the laws against it struck at those—called "engrossers"—who planned to gain control over necessities, such as grain or foodstuffs in considerable quantities, either by purchase or otherwise, with the intention of raising prices. The statute book holds quite a series of enactments designed to prevent anything in the nature of what we know as a "corner" or "combine." "Regrating" was a criminal offense, and so was "forestalling." The former consisted of buying and selling the same day in the same market or near it, and the latter implied the purchase of merchandise on the way to market or before the hour at which the market commenced with the intention of selling at a profit, while it was also "forestalling" to circulate rumors calculated to raise the prices of commodities. Though these laws have fallen into desuetude, they were in force in our grandfathers' time.—London Mail.

He Let Her Sleep.

Some years ago a Swansea vessel was caught in a terrible gale. The captain had his wife on board, and when the wind was still rising he told her to go down below and sleep, for all was well. He remained on the bridge till the mate came up and said: "We've done all we can. Hadn't you better tell the chaps to get out the boats?"

"Yes, yes, my lad, if you think so," said the captain, who knew the only choice left was whether to go down with the ship or in a small boat, which couldn't live ten seconds in that sea. The engineers came up with the news that the fires were all out. "Very well, my lads," said the captain quietly; "save yourselves if you can."

"Won't you fetch the wife on deck, sir?" asked one of the men.

"No," was the calm reply; "let her sleep, poor old girl. I am going down to have a smoke." And, smoking by the bedside of his sleeping wife, he went down with the ship.

Modern Maps.

There are Egyptian maps dating from 1400 B. C., but in spite of this long history it has been astonishingly difficult to make progress in charts until very recent times. Errors are perpetuated; truth is forgotten; advance is slow. As late as 1900 charts of the Alaskan coast issued by the United States were said to be thirty miles wrong, and nearly all commercial map makers still represent mountain chains as caterpillars, and the fringe of the shore is adorned with a blue wavy frill. As for railroad maps, the less said the better, the great railroad map of the northern belt of the United States adorning the walls of the Broad street Pennsylvania station in Philadelphia being distorted east and west, north and south and otherwise, its accuracy in large part not being over 30 per cent, yet it is a more than usually good railroad map.—Engineering Magazine.

The Last Gladiators.

It was in A. D. 430 that the edict was passed which forever abolished the gladiatorial combats. In the deserts of Lybia there lived a monk named Telemachus, who, touched by the cruel stories of the combats, went to Rome, leaped over the barrier of the arena of the Coliseum, threw himself between the groups of fighters and implored them in the name of Christ desist. Telemachus fell, slain by the swords of the gladiators, but there never was another fight in the Coliseum. The spirit of the monk had its effect, and the above mentioned edict was soon passed.

Cruikshank's Fagin.

During the time Cruikshank was illustrating "Oliver Twist" he spent days traversing the east end of London in search of a face that would correspond with his conception of the character of Fagin. One day while standing before a mirror in his dining room "pulling faces at himself," so to speak, for the want of something better to do, he accidentally made the features for which he was looking. The picture, therefore, of Fagin is really that of Cruikshank himself.

At Last.

A well known clergyman, called to other duties, says a writer in the Western Christian Advocate, preached his last sermon before the installation of his successor. The local paper, in announcing the order of services, gave it as follows:

"Sermon by the Rev. Blank; solo and quartet, 'Hushed at Length.'"

His Wanderings.

Stranger—What wonderful tales old Blinks relates! He must have been a great traveler in his day. Native—He was never outside the county in his life; but, you see, his mind has wandered for years.

Not Popular.

"I don't take much stock in that scheme of yours," said the moneyed man.

"And no one else does, either," responded the promoter.—Amateur Stage.

The "Centre Democrat" Challenged

It is typical of the guilty when detected to cry "stop, thief" and thus endeavor to avert attention to others. This was last week aptly illustrated by the "Centre Democrat." The editor of that newspaper, more so than any other individual in Centre County, was instrumental in brow-beating County Chairman Kimport into deserting the regular Democrats in this County and voting for George W. Guthrie for State Chairman. Entirely aside from the question whether Chairman Kimport sacrificed the respect of his best friends at home, it is undeniably true that he followed the dictation of the bludgeon wielded by editor Kurtz and turned his back upon editor Meek and others of the old time regulars in the local Democracy. So much for Chairman Kimport's action.

Immediately following the Harrisburg convention the editor of the "Centre Democrat" planned having the Democratic County Committee adopt a resolution flatly indorsing Chairman Kimport's vote for Guthrie. Prior to the Harrisburg convention editor Meek of the "Democratic Watchman" and his faction planned throwing out Chairman Kimport and filling his place with one more subservient to their wishes. When Chairman Kimport flopped to Guthrie, prodded on as he was by editor Kurtz, the Meek faction openly declared war on his head. They declared that they were guided by principle. Editor Kurtz, in his desire to have the County Committee indorse Chairman Kimport, also took the ground that he and his newspaper were prompted by high ideals, that a principle was at stake and that this was of paramount importance.

And then something happened. The two bosses of the Democratic factions lost all interest in principle, in a single night they dropped the plan to have the County Committeeeither indorse or repudiate Chairman Kimport. Every question of principle, every question of right or wrong, was suddenly pushed into the background. The "Democratic Watchman" first announced that its faction would not insist on Chairman Kimport being censured by the County Committee. The "Centre Democrat" toddled along and confirmed the suspicion of a deal between the two factions by publicly pledging the Meek coterie that no effort would be made to embarrass the regulars, that no resolutions indorsing Chairman Kimport would be introduced, and that the meeting of the County Committee was to be a "love feast." The little fellows in the two factions were thus given notice not to get gay, in other words, that the hysteria over such a trifle as principle was temporarily suspended. The message sent forth was that principle, self-respect, everything, was to be forgotten and the two factions forced together until after the coming November election.

As we remarked in the opening sentence of this article, it is typical of the guilty when detected to cry, "stop, thief" and thus try to attract attention to others. To avert public attention from the miserable plight of the "Centre Democrat" and its deal to have the County Committee cowardly avoid the Kimport question, editor Kurtz made the charge that "The Republican" had inspired the candidacy of certain persons for nomination for County Commissioners on the Republican ticket. The charge is so idiotic as to warrant no notice on our part. However, we will fearlessly and frankly meet it and any other charge the "Centre Democrat" has to make. As is not the case with the "Centre Democrat" our skirts are clean.

In advance of the primaries "The Republican" has no candidates. Following the primaries we stand squarely for the Republican ticket, from top to bottom. This is our avowed policy and it will be rigidly adhered to in the present campaign and in all future campaigns.

"The Republican" is in no deals. We have not suggested or inspired the candidacy of any aspirant for nomination on the Republican ticket. We hold that the privilege of selecting the several Republican nominees rests solely with the Republicans of Centre County and not with this or any other Republican newspaper. We hold to the view that it is equally the privilege of the Democratic voters in Centre County to choose their several party nominees and that it is not the right of any Democratic newspaper or newspapers to dictate who shall be named.

Will the "Centre Democrat" deny that it inspired the candidacy of William H. Noll for nomination for County Commissioner and that it has decreed that he must be nominated regardless of the cost to other aspirants?

The Noll deal is but a small part of the slate made up by the editor of the "Centre Democrat." Will the "Centre Democrat" deny that after J. M. Cunningham withdrew as an aspirant for the Democratic nomination for County Treasurer the editor of that newspaper was a party to an unsuccessful scheme to induce either of two other Democrats to enter the field, assurance being given that the one selected would be supported in preference to either James Schofield, of Bellefonte, or John D. Miller, of Walker township? The "Centre Democrat," if it is truthful, will acknowledge that these are facts.

Will the "Centre Democrat" deny that the editor of that newspaper is a party to a scheme to force the nomination of A. B. Lee, of Potter township, over David J. Gingery, of Huston township, for Sheriff, and that the word has been given that Gingery is not a strong man and must not be nominated? Will the "Centre Democrat" deny that it is secretly working to secure the nomination of D. A. Dietrich, of Walker township, for the Democratic nomination for Recorder, and that it is thereby betraying the trust of E. C. McKinley, of Boggs township, and W. Francis Speer, of Bellefonte?

There isn't much of the slate left, but what is left the "Centre Democrat" also wants to own, body and soul. Up to the present time the "Centre Democrat" is for J. Kennedy Johnston for the Democratic nomination for District Attorney, although ready to flop to D. Paul Fortney at any time the latter shows any indications of strength over Johnston.

But a few short weeks ago the "Centre Democrat" had reorganization on the brain. Now that it has a personally selected slate of candidates for County offices, the "Centre Democrat" has entered into a deal to forget the question of principle involved in party reorganization and sacrifice everything for the selection of its slate. The primaries on September 30th will determine what the people of Centre County think of the personally selected and personally conducted slate of editor Kurtz.

The Sinews of War.

On the occasion of the annual encampment of a western militia one of the soldiers, a clerk who lived well at home, was experiencing much difficulty in disposing of his rations. A fellow sufferer near by was watching with no little amusement the first soldier's attempts to Fletcherize a piece of meat. "Any trouble, Tom?" asked the second soldier sarcastically.

"None in particular," was the response. Then after a sullen survey of the bit of beef he held in his hand the amateur fighter observed:

"Bill, I now fully realize what people mean when they speak of the sinews of war."

PHILIPPINE VOLCANOES.

Mayon Is the Most Famous, and the Taal Comes Next.

The most famous Philippine volcano and one of the finest volcano cones in the world is that of Mayon. Its height is 8,970 feet, and the volcano is visible at a great distance. Since 1766 records have been kept of its eruptions. In that year many plantations and villages were buried under a stream of lava which flowed down its eastern slope. About 1,200 lives were lost in the eruption of 1814, which buried the country around a part of the base of Mayon under the outpourings of lava and dust. A similar calamity in 1825 destroyed the lives of about 1,500 persons. In the nineteenth century there were a number of severe eruptions, including one in 1886-7 which continued about nine months. An eruption in 1897 killed 350 persons and destroyed much property. Twenty-two violent eruptions of this volcano are on record.

Next to Mayon the Taal volcano is the most remarkable. It is on an island in the lake of Bombon, and the island, built up by its outpourings, has an area of 220 square miles. The volcano is incessantly ejecting dust and vapor from its crater. Taal as well as Mayon has been the center of numerous destructive earthquakes, but no very great eruption has occurred since 1864, when four villages around the mountain were completely destroyed.

LENGTHY VISITS.

The Unstinted Hospitality of Old Virginia.

Virginia hospitality is a byword. The old time country house, says Mrs. Roger A. Pryor in "My Day," was built of elastic material, capable of sheltering any number of guests, many of whom remained all summer. Indeed, this was expected of them.

"My dear sir," said the genial master of Westover to a departing guest who had sought shelter from a rainstorm, "my dear sir, do stay and pay us a visit."

The guest pleaded business that forbade his compliance.

"Well, well," said Major Drewry, "if you can't pay us a visit come for two or three weeks at least."

"Week ends" were unknown in Virginia, and equally out of the question an invitation limited by the host to prescribed days and hours. Sometimes a happy guest would ignore time altogether and stay along from season to season. I cannot remember a parallel case to that of Isaac Watts, who, invited by Sir Thomas Abney to spend a night at Stoke Newington, accepted with great cheerfulness and stayed the rest of his life, nearly forty years, but I do remember that an invitation for one night brought to a member of our family a pleasant couple who remained for years.

Mozart's Musical Memory.

Mozart had a wonderful memory of musical sounds. When only fourteen years of age he went to Rome to assist in the solemnities of holy week. Immediately after his arrival he went to the Sistine chapel to hear the famous "Miserere" of Allegri. Being aware that it was forbidden to take or give a copy of this renowned piece of music, Mozart placed himself in a corner and gave the strictest attention to the music and on leaving the church noted down the entire piece. A few days afterward he heard it a second time and, following the music with his own copy in his hand, satisfied himself of the fidelity of his memory. The next day he sang the "Miserere" at a concert, accompanying himself on the harpsichord, and the performance produced such a sensation in Rome that Pope Clement XIV. requested that this musical prodigy should be presented to him at once.

Picturing the Face.

"Why do you photographers always photograph the left side of the face by preference?"

"Because it's the best looking," was the prompt reply. "The left side of the face is always the more regular, and it always shows least the marks of time.

"But," he continued, "if you want to bring out the real character of a face photograph the right side. There nature sets her print. There the lines are bold and unmistakable. There every defect, no less than every excellence, is stamped deep.

"The left side, where everything is softened down, for beauty. The right side, where everything is well rubbed in, for character. Those are the portrait artist's two chief rules."—New York Tribune.

Her Importance.

Herbert Spencer once told this story of a woman of his acquaintance: "Vain as well as vulgar minded, she professed to have a high admiration of Shakespeare and was partial to reading his plays aloud and considered that she declaimed the speeches extremely well. On one occasion, after enlarging upon her reverence for him, she ended by saying: 'Ah, I often wish that he were alive and that I had him here. How we would enjoy one another's conversation!'"

Sure to Know.

"I understand that you have bought some remarkably expensive gowns here in Paris."

"Yes, but what's the use? Few people know whether a gown is really expensive or not."

"Wait until you reach the customs inspectors."—Pittsburg Post.

Some men do not make fortunes for the sake of living, but, blinded by avarice, live for the sake of money getting.—Juvenal.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Washington Camp No. 518 P. O. S. of A. will hold a basket picnic in Schenck's grove on Saturday, August 19. District President W. F. Leathers will make the address of welcome. State Master of Forms Roy L. Schuyler, of Lock Haven, will speak and Rev. E. F. Faust, of the Reformed church, is on the program for an address. Ice cream, lunches, etc. will be served on the grounds during the day. Everybody is cordially invited to join the boys of the order on this occasion and spend a pleasant day with them in the cool and shady grove on the ridge.

Yarnell.

Mrs. C. A. Walker and daughter, of Bigler, are visiting here.

Ellis Bierly and wife, of Milesburg, accompanied by a friend, spent Sunday at the Pownell home.

Miss Bertha Hancock, of Philipsburg, spent a few days here last week as the guest of Trixie and Amber Confer.

Viola Follington left on Saturday morning for her home in Clearfield, after a two weeks visit with friends here.

A number of our young folks attended the moonlight picnic held by Pearl Brickley, at Romola, last Saturday evening.

Mrs. S. Robinson and grand-daughter, Zenoxia Morrisey, of Tyrone, spent a few days last week with Mrs. William Shawley. Mrs. Shawley was suddenly called away by the death of her sister, Mrs. S. T. Hall, at Houtzdale.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the great system tonic and builder.

Pine Grove Mills.

Miss Claire Borest, of Spruce Creek, is visiting with friends at Pine Hall.

N. E. Hess and son, John, were Sunday visitors at the G. W. McWilliams home.

John D. Dreibelbis and family were Sunday visitors to the Alf Bowersox home.

Malon Hoover, one of our oldest citizens, is somewhat indisposed with nervous trouble.

H. H. Goss and family are packing their grips for a week's outing in the eastern part of the State.

A. J. Tate has been housed up the past ten days with lumbago, but is somewhat better at this writing.

Isaac Woomer and Harry Koch are each shy a good horse that died from the excessive heat last week.

The Baileyville picnic will be held on Saturday, so have everthing brushed aside and go have a good time

Dave Gingery, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff, was circulating among his friends in this section last week. He said he was much encouraged with the outlook for his nomination.

A squad of boy scouts from Lewistown Troop No. 4, commanded by W. P. Woods and J. W. Conrad, hiked down the pike and through town last Thursday, via Spruce Creek, Huntingdon and home by Saturday.

Liveryman Elmer Eavey, at State College, had his share of hard luck last week, being obliged to kill one of his best horses on account of a broken leg. The horse was one of a spirited team and became unmanageable, both throwing themselves, and in the scuffle one of the horses broke a front leg. It was quickly killed to end its sufferings.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Harman, of near Lemont, are mourning the death of their two-years-old boy, who died on last Wednesday of obstruction of the intestines. He was a dear, bright little fellow and the young parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their hour of sorrow. Burial was made on Friday at Houserville, Rev. W. K. Harnish officiating.

Harry Gardner and wife and two children, from Orange, N. J., are visiting their old home here and also spending some time in Tyrone and Altoona. Harry is one of our boys and now is holding down a good position in New York City, but his health failed and he is on a vacation which we all trust will enable him to recuperate and become restored to his former shape.

Our townsman, J. A. Decker, for the third time has been granted the privilege of conducting the large boarding tent at the Grangers picnic. Mr. and Mrs. Decker are always successful in conducting this enterprise, both are quite industrious and in every way are competent to give the large crowd the very best of everything to eat and everything served in a way to please the most critical.

Scotia.

Mrs. George Williams and family, of Derry, arrived on Monday for a short visit with her brother, Walter Parsons. It is two years since she has been here and naturally she finds a few changes.

J. F. Fields' name may now be found on the Pennsylvania Railroad payroll. He accepted a steady position with the company and went to work on Wednesday of last week. Thus another good man drifts away.

Banker D. F. Kapp and G. W. Murtorff, of State College, started out for a little hike on Sunday, stopped with friends here for supper and treked back home in the cool of the evening. Just for a little exercise, they said.

With the Williams reunion and the Baileyville picnic both coming on the same day, Saturday next, about the only thing to do will be to follow the crowd, for thev are both good places to be about the time the gong sounds for dinner.

Charley Stitzer and wife, of Pleasant Gap, came home on Sunday for the first time since moving away on the first of April. Charley said he is getting his share of the business at Pleasant Gap, but of course Grandfather Williams didn't hear what was being said, for it was the first time he had seen the new granddaughter and he could't well be blamed for overlooking everything else.

We agree with the Scotia correspondent of the "Centre Democrat" that Scotia is standing on one leg, and we will go him one better and say that the leg is getting rather wobbly, but we will not agree with him as to the cause. He claims it to be too much tariff. We claim it to be due to pop gun politics and the uncertainty as to whether there will be any tariff at all that is putting us down the gang-plank.

Some time last winter "The Republican" said something about William Burnside and matrimony. Now, we don't know whether Billy has decided to come over and join the Benedicks, but there has been a carload of household goods shipped here recently and "Jones paid the freight." But you can't blame him, for its no child's play to travel 28 miles every day and work hard between trains; that's what Billy and Superintendent Harry Valentine have been doing all summer.

After soaring from one place to another since the closing down of the mines, D. C. Williams has finally landed and landed on his feet in the passenger round-house in Altoona, where he has secured a fine position. Clem is one of the most competent men we had here, but he thinks the mines too uncertain when one doesn't have work more than half the time. This has been the experience in the last two years and he has decided to make the change, and his friends here naturally hope it will be for the better.

As trust busters Mr. and Mrs. Koontz, of Altoona, have the officials in Washington beat to a frazzle. They claim that one or two men up there have the huckleberry business monopolized and are charging 10 cents a quart. Rather than pay that price they put on their working clothes and came here and picked their own berries. At the same time they called on their old friends and were able to return home in the evening loaded down with all the berries they needed. Needless to say, the berries cost them nothing.

Charlie Martz and William Collins, of Pine Grove Mills, spent a day here recently. Charlev was looking up old friends and William was busy trying to make new ones. For several months William has had a queer buzzing under his hat. He had a phrenologist look him over and found it to be a well developed specimen of political beeitis. He thinks by the 30th of September it will be fully developed and that by November it will be the King Bee in the Democratic hive in Centre County. If Democrats must be elected, Billie, here's hoping you get your share.

Lost, strayed or stolen: A reward of $25 will be paid for the apprehension of the Scotia baseball club. It was last heard of at the Woodmen's picnic at Hunter's Park, July 24, at which time they claimed the State College boys had the ball hoodooed. The Scotia boys said that the sun was in their eyes and that the grass was too long, and one of the out-fielders said that somebody had built a stone wall behind him after the game started and that he never knew it until he started after a ball, when he fell all over himself. By the time he had gathered himself up the runner was home. Our suspicion is that the college pitcher was "some pumpkins" and that he kept the hits as far apart as facts in a political campaign, and anybody who has heard a political speech will know the rest.

Mt. Eagle.

Mr. Koons, of Altoona, is visiting his father-in-law, J. R. Pheasant.

Jacob Shank is entertaining his daughter and children from Trafford City.

The brick layers are almost through with their part on the new school building.

Mrs. Bathurst and children, from Coatesville, are visiting with relatives and friends here.

John Leathers, who lived in the Reeder house, this week moved into the Mrs. Dunkle property.

Miss Florence Leathers several nights gave ago a moonlight picnic which was greatly enjoyed by the young folks.

Mrs. Butler and children, of Ardmore, are spending a few weeks at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. B. Leathers.

Services were held morning and evening in the Mt. Eagle church, Rev. Mr. Fisher, of Mill Hall, occupying the pulpit.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Kennedy Methodist Episcopal church will hold a festival on Saturday evening, August 19.

Miss Kate Glenn, of Cleveland, Ohio, was last week a guest of Miss Florence Leathers and while here called on her numerous friends.

Albert Aikey, who had been working at the Lock Haven paper mill, on Sunday evening shipped his trunk to Bellwood, where he was employed before a reduction in the force laid off a lot of the men last spring.

James Bathurst and daughter and also the little children, from Philadelphia, are here for a visit with his sister, Mrs. Etta Leathers. By the way, Mr. Bathurst is an old soldier, having lost a leg during the war.

Unionville.

Andrew J. Griest, of Philipsburg, is visiting with relatives at this place.

Guy Woleslagle, who is employed by Leon VanNoy, at Troy, Pa., is visiting with his parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Irwin, of Buffalo, N. Y., are guests at the home of the former's brother, Dr. W. U. Irwin.

Say, Manning Resides has purchased a brand, newautomobile. Guess we will have to take a back seat for Manning. But, say, who'd a thought it?

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopol church will hold an ice cream social on Friday, August 25. Full particulars next week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spotts are confined to their rooms with stomach trouble. Mrs. Lonsberry has been caring for her aged parents almost continuously for the last two weeks and now is about played out.

H. E. Holtzworth attended the funeral of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wray, at Bellwood. The child's remains were removed there from Harrisburg for interment. Mrs. Wray was formerly Miss Elizabeth Brown, of this place, and later of Bellefonte. She and her husband have the sympathy of all their friends in this community.

A large number of our town and township people took in the Gettysburg excursion last Sunday. Everybody said: "Talk about a time!" George said he wouldn't have missed it for one hundred dollars. Frank said that next time he will go down in his auto and then he can stay longer. Those from here taking in the trip included George and Joseph Stere, Bert Winters, Laird Morrison, Samuel Hoover, J. H. Fisher, Mrs. D. E. Fisher, Harry Kerchner, Floyd Sanderson, B. F. Peters, Harry Biddle, H. G. Musser, J. M. Stere and Robert Hall.

The Way of a Woman.

"She passed me on the street yesterday without speaking."

"She did?"

"Yes, the stuck up thing."

"I wouldn't say that. Perhaps she didn't mean to snub you."

"Of course she meant to snub me. You see, I had on my old hat."

"That wouldn't make any difference to her."

"Oh, wouldn't it? Once before when I happened to have on an old dress she didn't speak to me, either. Now I'm through with her. If she doesn't care enough for me to speak when I'm in my old clothes she needn't speak at all. I won't speak to her when I'm dressed up. That's all there is to it."

"Did you speak to her?"

"I should say not. It's her place to speak first. Do you suppose I'm going to attract attention by yelling my lungs out for the like of her? I guess not."

"Perhaps she didn't see you."

"See me? Of course she did. I saw her, didn't I? Then why didn't she see me?"—Detroit Free Press.

When the Shoe Pinches.

"My own common sense and the shoe clerk permitting, I shall never wear another pair of tight shoes," said a woman, "but if I should be inveigled into making myself uncomfortable I know what I shall do to allay the pain. The ministrations to the aching feet of a man who called on my Italian cobbler for relief showed me a remedy. The man's shoes pinched in three different places. Having located the painful spots Rafael dipped a long strip of canton flannel into boiling water and held the cloth stretched tightly across the man's shoes. When the water began to evaporate he dampened the cloth again and repeated the process several times.

"'Now,' said he at last, 'your shoes are set to your feet. No more hurt.'

"The man gave him a quarter, which I thought a small price to pay for relief from a pinching shoe."—New York Sun.

A Witty Reply.

On one occasion an important dress rehearsal at His Majesty's theater was prolonged until the small hours of the morning. The company grew very weary, particularly a gentleman who had been with Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree in a good many productions, but who had never attained to more than a very tiny part. When the time came to rehearse his few lines he was so tired that his voice was anything but distinct.

"What's the matter, Mr. Z.?" asked Sir Herbert in his most sarcastic tones. "Are you saving your voice for the rehearsal?"

"No, Sir Herbert," was the retort, "I've never been able to save anything under your management."

Sir Herbert, an exceedingly witty man himself, was so pleased with the retort that the salary of the small part man was raised.—London M. A. P.

An English King's Death.

William Rufus was killed by an arrow, either accidental or with murderous intent. He died in the New forest. His body was stripped by tramps and the next day was found by a charcoal burner, who placed the naked corpse on his cart, hoping to receive a reward. On the way to Winchester the cart was upset, and the king's body fell in the mire. Covered with filth and black with charcoal, it arrived in Winchester, where it was buried in the cathedral. A few years later the tower fell and crushed the tomb, and 600 years after the Puritans rifled the grave and played football with the king's skull.

Inquisitive Girls.

Bessie—I almost hate Carrie Dyer! She asks such impudent questions, you know. I was telling her if Frank Barnes had asked me to marry him once he had asked me twenty times, and she had the impertinence to ask me if he had asked once. Minnie—The idea! But has he, Bessie?—Exchange.

Free Demonstration

in the use of

ECONOMY JARS

During the next two weeks an expert demonstrator will be present at our store to show housekeepers and others the great convenience and advantages resulting from the use of Economy Jars.

The Public is Cordially Invited.

Appreciating the desire on the part of the public to learn by practical demonstrations, we extend a cordial invitation to all to visit our store and see our expert demonstrator fill and seal Economy Jars; in a word, our demonstrator will show you how easily it is done.

Women and Banking.

The cashier of a bank which has many women depositors, in speaking of these customers, said that the stock stories about overdrawn accounts and ignorance as to bank methods had become pointless. Whatever may have been the case before, women give banks no more trouble now than men. "The woman who insists on drawing money when her balance has been exhausted because there are still blank checks in her book has disappeared, and in her place we have a woman who wants interest on her money and who knows what 'call money' means," said the cashier. Referring to the 'old kind,' he added: "One day we did have a real case. A woman rushed in, said she had just figured up her account and found she was $500 short. Husband away—no other money—what could she do? She had brought jewels to leave as collateral security till he returned, and then we looked up the matter and found she had over $800 to her credit."—New York Tribune.

A Dance Without a Smile.

They have a singular kind of dance conducted on the greens of country villages in Russia. The dancers stand apart, a knot of young men here, a knot of maidens there, each sex by itself and silent as a crowd of mutes. A piper breaks into a tune. A youth pulls off his cap and challenges his girl with a wave and a bow. If the girl is willing she waves her handkerchief in token of assent. The youth advances, takes a corner of the handkerchief in his hand and leads his lassie round and round. No word is spoken, and no laugh is heard. Stiff with cords and rich with braids, the girl moves heavily by herself, going round and round and never allowing her partner to touch her hand. The pipe goes droning on for hours in the same sad key and measure, and the prize of merit in this "circling," as the dance is called, is given by spectators to the lassie who in all that summer revelry has never spoken and never smiled.

Wanted More Converts.

Southey in his life of Wesley relates the following whimsical incident. He states that some of the opponents of these religionists in the excess of zeal against enthusiasm took up a whole wagon load of Methodists and carried them before a justice. When they were asked what these persons had done there was an awkward silence. At last one of the accusers said, "Why, they pretend to be better than other people, and, besides, they pray from morning till night."

The magistrate asked if they had done nothing else.

"Yes, sir," an old man said. "An't please your worship, they have converted my wife. Till she went among them she had such a tongue, and now she is as quiet as a lamb."

"Carry them back; carry them back," the magistrate said, "and let them convert all the scolds in the town!"

Icebergs and Echoes.

Icebergs are always a source of worry to the transatlantic steamship skippers. It isn't pleasant to run along through a fog or a murky night and smash into one of these floating mountains of ice. The liner captains have a way of finding ice that at first strikes the landsman as curious. When it is suspected there are bergs in the neighborhood the whistle is kept going. If there is an echo the navigator slows down and keeps a sharp eye out, for echoes don't grow in the open ocean.

Disraeli's Gorgeous Costume.

When Disraeli was a young man he once went on a vacation trip to Corfu in this extraordinary costume: "A blood red shirt with silver buttons as big as shillings, an immense scarf for girdle, full of pistols and daggers; red cap, red slippers, broad blue striped jacket and trousers. His servant, engaged for the occasion, wore a Mameluke dress of crimson and gold, with a white turban thirty yards long and a saber glittering like a rainbow."—London Spectator.

The Difficulty.

The First Worker—Manner born be blowed! D'joo mean ter say if me an' you come into a bit o' splosh we couldn't keep our ends up with these 'ere dooks and people?

His Doubting Friend—Oh, we should be ori right, but our missuses 'd give the game away, yer know.—London Sketch.

The Landlubber.

They were enlightening the landlubber as to maritime matters. He was becoming more and more crestfallen as their explanations progressed.

"Why, I always thought," he sadly sighed, "that the port side of a ship was the one nearest port!"—Boston Herald.

Maddening.

"They really fear she will become insane. You see, she found a diary he kept before he married her."

"Oh, I see! And the awful revelations"—

"'Revelations?' No. It was all in cipher, and she couldn't read a word of it."—London Tit-Bits.

An Affront.

D'Auber—Your daughter paints in the Dutch school, does she not? Mrs. Newrich—Not much she don't! We pay $50 a quarter to give her private lessons at home. Dutch school indeed!—Philadelphia Record.

Posting Mother.

"Did that young man kiss you last night?"

"Mother, do you suppose he came all the way up here just to hear me sing?"

European Hotels.

Most American travelers on their first trips on the continent of Europe are astounded when upon the day of their departure from a hotel they are presented with their bill by the head waiter instead of by the landlord or by his chief clerk. But it is the custom, and this important individual is thus assured of his tip. But they fret and fume inwardly as they think of all the other servants to be tipped and usually end by giving each one about three times what he expects. There are two ways of avoiding this worry if they only knew. In small hotels and pensions where an average of $2 or 10 francs a day is paid for pension it is proper to allow 1 franc a day for each person for service and when going away divide it accordingly among those who have served you. In larger hotels a more satisfactory way is to take 10 per cent of the hotel bill, whatever it is, add it to the amount of the bill and request the head waiter to divide it among the servants. Thus is the tipping question very much simplified.—New York Tribune.

Sweet Mother Love.

A man awoke one night with a toothache.

He groaned, he turned and twisted, he howled, he sat up and lay down again. He arranged his pillow and pressed it against his face, with another groan.

His wife slept on and never moved.

He wanted attention, he wanted sympathy, and he groaned again.

Still she slept.

Injury added to the pain; it wasn't treating a fellow right to sleep like that when he was suffering with a painful tooth, and he called her name.

Still she slept.

He had groaned three times as loud as he could, and she didn't awake.

Then the baby, in its crib in another room, sighed softly in its sleep.

The woman was on her feet and standing beside its crib, anxious eyed, in an instant.

"And I actually thought," said the man, "that she loved me most."—St. Louis Star.

National Purses.

The Englishman carries gold, silver and copper loose in his trousers pocket, pulls out a handful of mixed coins and selects the one he needs. The American carries his "wad of bills" in a long, narrow pocketbook in which the greenbacks lie flat. The Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics. The German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen. The half civilized capitalist from a torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief, which he hides about his clothes. A similar course finds favor with the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings.—London Mail.

Bee's Double Stomach.

The bee has two distinct stomachs. In the first it stores away the honey it so industriously gathers up from the flowers until such time as it is ready to yield it up, while the other stomach is used simply and solely for digestion purposes. Thus the food and the honey are never mixed. When the bee returns to the hive and is ready to deposit the honey it has gathered it contracts the muscles of the stomach, by which act the honey is ejected through the mouth. As to bee food, it is various in kind, consisting largely of the honey it so patiently makes for others.

What Nothing Is.

If any man thinks that he can conceive well enough how there should be nothing, I will engage that what he means by nothing is as much something as anything that he ever thought of in his life, and I believe that if he knew what nothing was it would be intuitively evident to him that it could not be. Absolute nothing is the aggregate of all the contradictions in the world.—Jonathan Edwards.

A Partial Alibi.

"She claims she has a perfect alibi."

"What is her alibi?"

"She says she can prove that at the very time the crime was committed her own little girl was brushing her hair."

"That proves an alibi for her hair, but how about herself?"—Houston Post.

Walking.

"I know how people walk," said Willie to his grandmother. "They put one foot down and let it stay till it gets away behind, then do the same with the other foot, and keep on doing it."—Chicago News.

Quite Likely.

"I wonder when the first surgical operation was performed."

"I suppose it was in Adam's time. When he had his fall he must have broken something."—New York Press.

The Weather.

Sunshine is delicious, rain is refreshing, wind braces up, snow is exhilarating; there is really no such thing as bad weather—only different kinds of good weather.—John Ruskin.

His Lesson.

"But, you silly boy, if I married you with your means you couldn't even dress me."

"Perhaps with a few lessons I could learn."—Exchange.

The Watch Below.

Those whose privilege it may be to inspect a liner or other large passenger ship will be wise to leave their watches at home, says the Sheffield Telegraph. This may sound strange. There is no fear of losing their watches, but they may find their watches lose, all the same, and very considerably too. In the engine room, where the electric dynamo is at work, the air is so powerfully charged with electricity as to affect any watch, even when carried in the pocket and not actually close to the dynamo. Engineers invariably leave their watches in their room, never, except by accident, carrying them below.

An engineer wishing to demonstrate the wondrous power of the dynamo held an iron hammer in his hand some inches from it. The dynamo drew this hammer from his hand with a clang as a magnet would a needle. Doubtless many persons who have gone below at some time or other have subsequently wondered how their watches have become "deranged," ignorant of the fact that it was done by electricity, which plays havoc with the delicate mechanism of a watch.

Rossetti and His China.

Ford Madox Hueffer tells in "Memories and Impressions" a story of Rossetti and his china collecting. A certain potter had acquired a valuable set of Chinese tea things of which he had duplicates made in his pottery. Then he got an agent to sell the imitations to Rossetti for a large sum.

"Coming to tea the next day," relates Mr. Hueffer, "he remarked to Rossetti, 'Hello, Gabriel, where did you get those clumsy imitations?' And eventually he sold the originals to Rossetti for a figure considerably over that at which Rossetti had bought the forgeries. At each visit thereafter he brought one of the forged cups in his pocket, and while Rossetti's back was turned substituted the forgery for one of the genuine cups. At the end of the series of visits, therefore, Rossetti once more possessed the copies and the potter the genuine set, which he sold, I believe, to M. Tissot."

Morphine and Morality.

Morphine stands unequaled as a perverter of the moral sense. Whisky may disturb the imagination and judgment, causing many foolish and unwise actions to follow its use, but morphine strikes deeper and creates a person whom the father of lies must recognize as kindred to himself. Stories that are the creation of a disturbed brain, told in a manner to appear so intrinsically true that the stories become works of art, are what you will obtain from the habitual user of morphine or cocaine. I know of nothing that will appeal to one of these sufficiently to enable you to get an honest reply to any question of moment you may address to him. If you should receive a truthful reply it will be by accident.—North American Journal of Homeopathy.

A Tale of Two Hairs.

Of the dandy D'Orsay's not very brilliant "wit" this is from Feinmouth's biography: "The company were lounging about the fireplace when a singularly tactless gentleman of the name of Powell crept up behind the count and, twitching suddenly a hair out of the back of his head, exclaimed: 'Excuse me, count; one solitary white hair!' D'Orsay contrived to conceal his annoyance, but bided his time. Very soon he found his chance and, approaching Mr. Powell, he deliberately plucked a hair from his head, exclaiming, 'Parrdon, Pow-all; one solitary black 'air!'"

Not His Air.

It was a very fashionable concert, and the artists were very well known ones, but the two young things were too busy with picking out their peculiarities to hear the music.

In the midst of a beautiful selection the pianist suddenly lifted his hands from the keys, and one of the young things was heard to say clearly:

"I wonder if that hair is his own?"

The old man who sat beside her was slightly deaf, but he turned with a benevolent smile.

"No, miss," he imparted pleasantly; "that is Schubert's."—Philadelphia Times.

A Friendly Tip.

"I'm going to keep on climbing until I reach the top of the ladder," said the candidate who had just been elected to a petty office.

"That's all right," rejoined the old politician, "but take my advice and keep an eye on the men at the bottom. They are the chaps who can upset the ladder."—Pittsburg Post.

A Straightforward Answer.

J. B. Lippincott once ventured to ask Ouida, the novelist, how she came to know so much about clubs, camp life, barracks, gambling houses and other places which are only visited by men. She placed her hands upon her knees and, looking straight at her questioner, said, "It is none of your business."

Good Sailing.

Jack—Once more, Molly, will you marry me? Village Belle—For the thirteenth time this hour I tell you I will not. Jack—Well, thirteen knots an hour ain't bad sailin' for a little craft like you.—London Tit Bits.

Exhausts the Stock.

Peck—I tell you it takes a lot of courage to propose. Heck—Yes, so much that many of you husbands never have any afterward.—Boston Transcript.

In politics what begins in fear usually ends in folly.—Coleridge.

Charles Lamb's Excuse.

Leadenhall street, London, was for many years the scene of the daily labors of Charles Lamb. That Lamb, despite his many complaints, appears to have had a fairly easy time at the East India house is evident from a story told by Algernon Black in Macmillan's Magazine for February, 1879. One morning he "was observed to enter the office hastily and in an excited manner, assumed no doubt for the occasion, to leave by an opposite door. He appeared no more that day. He stated the next morning in explanation that as he was passing through Leadenhall market on his way to the office he accidentally trod on a butcher's heel. 'I apologized,' said Lamb, 'to the butcher, but the latter retorted: "Yes, but your excuses won't cure my broken heel, and, —— me," said he, seizing his knife, "I'll have it out of you!"'

"Lamb fled from the butcher and, in dread of his pursuit, dared not remain for the rest of the day at the India house. This story was accepted as a humorous excuse for taking a holiday without leave."

Superstitions of Scalping.

Indians believe that scalping is annihilation of the soul; hence the eagerness of the Indian to secure the scalp of his enemy and save his own scalp. Deprived of the scalp the body becomes mere carrion, not even worthy of burial. "Whether or not its removal annihilates a soul," says General Dodge, author of "Our Wild Indians," "the Indian is yet sure that a scalp is 'strong medicine' and equally sure that its taking by him will involve consequences to him either very good or very bad, and he does not always know which. An Indian will never take the scalp of a colored soldier, nor does he give any reason for it; all to be got out of him by way of explanation is, 'Buffalo soldier no good; heap bad medicine.' Whatever the special religious opinion of each Indian in regard to taking the scalps of slain enemies, I have never yet known a single case where the scalp of a suicide was stripped off, and in many cases the superstition is so strong as to prevent the Indians even from touching the body."

His System.

"Percy," said his father sorrowfully, "Percy, you have been fighting again."

"Yes, father," said Percy.

"And you have lost the fight, Percy. That is worse than anything. When I was a boy, Percy, I always won. I had a system by which I always contrived to get in the first blow."

"I did that, father."

"Well, you did it badly. By my system I always hit the boy fairly on the point of the jaw. My system never failed."

"Yes, father, but suppose when you hit the boy on the point of his jaw he fell into a pile of bricks and got up with a brick in each hand, how would you have continued your system when you were a boy?"

"Percy," said his father, "you seem to have a quarrelsome disposition. Let your defeat be a lesson to you. Now run away and play."—Pearson's.

Nature's Rifle Bullets.

What man has learned by dint of thought and experiment some of the lower animals appear to know through instinct. An instance is furnished by what is called the "spiral swimming" of certain organisms, such as the spherical shaped volvox and several elongated infusorians. As these revolve about the axis of progression in the manner of a projectile fired from a rifled gun, the consequence is that they are able to travel in a straight line, as they could not do otherwise, the revolution compensating with absolute precision for any tendency to deviate from a straight course. Without such a device many of these minute creatures would simply describe circles, making no forward progress.

Guarding Its Own Goods.

Honesty, in its purpose, looks but little outside of itself; honor generously aims to deserve the good opinion of the best, finding keener anguish in the moral stain or blemish than in grievous bodily wounds. Honesty guards its own goods, and loves self interest, while it gallantly protects the weak, relieves the oppressed from the grasp of cruel force, redresses the injuries of others or defends its own pure dignity.—Albert Mathews.

Art Enthusiasm.

"Does the public of Crimson Gulch remember my previous visit?" asked Mr. Stormington Barnes.

"It does," replied Broncho Bob.

"And is it waiting to receive me with open arms?"

"Not exactly open arms. It looks more like a case of concealed weapons."—Washington Star.

Good Impulses.

A mere good impulse that does not result in good works is rather worse than useless, for if not carried out in deed it has a reaction instead of an action as its outcome.

Settled.

Father—I don't think much of that young Sinkins who calls to see you. Daughter—Never mind, father. I think enough of him for both of us!

Nothing.

Binks—Where I spent Christmas last year the thermometer dropped to zero. Jinks—That's nothing. Binks—What's nothing? Jinks—Why, zero!

Considerate.

Miss Antique—I don't believe you could tell my age. Miss Caustique—I could, but I wouldn't be so mean.—Philadelphia Record.

WILLIAMS REUNION

Committee Extents Cordial Invitation to Public to Attend.

The Williams Re-union, the annual event of upper Bald Eagle Valley, will be held in John Q. Miles' grove near Martha, on Saturday August 19, 1911. It will be bigger and better than ever. All trains except the fast train East in the afternoon will stop at the grounds and a suitable platform will be erected for the accommodation of the passengers on the B. E. V. branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Port Matilda band will be in attendance, a "Merry Go Round" for the children, two games of ball and other athletic events for the athletes.

Col. H. S Taylor of Bellefonte and Rev. Gordon A. Williams will address the assembly and their reputation as entertainers is sufficient for that part of the program.

While this is the "Williams Reunion" a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend this annual outing.

Harry G. Ebbs, of Milesburg, the well known caterer, will have charge of the refreshment stands, which fact guarantees that the proper and wholesome refreshments can be had for all who wish them.

Law Abolishes Work Road Tax.

The new road law does away entirely with the work road tax, all road tax being made payable in cash. Heretofore all of the laws contained options.

The law provides that each township shall receive from the State 50 per cent of the amount collected by the townships. There is a provision in the law, however, that no township shall receive more than $20 for each mile of township road. Nothing in the law interferes with the appropriation for the maintenance of state roads.

The new law provides that the general supervision of township roads shall be in the hands of the township supervisors instead of road supervisors, and they shall be elected for four years each. One is to be chosen this year. The board will thus be made up of supervisors elected in 1909, 1910 and 1911. They shall organize by electing one of their number president and by electing a secretary and treasurer, who may be one person and who may or may not be a township supervisor, but not a road master. The salaries of the secretary and treasurer shall be fixed by the board of auditors, but the combined amount shall not exceed 2 per cent of the amount of money handled by the treasurer. The supervisors shall not levy a tax of more than ten mills without an order from the court, and the court cannot authorize the levying of more than ten additional mills.

The township supervisors must divide the township into one or more road districts and employ a superintendent for the entire township or choose a road master for each district, such superintendent or road master reporting to the superintendent each month. The wages of either are fixed by the supervisors. The law does not prevent the supervisors from contracting for the maintenance or improvement of less than ten miles of roads.

A provision of the law permits supervisors of one township to unite with those of another in the purchase of necessary machinery.

On all road taxes paid before Oct. 1, a rebate of 2 per cent will be allowed, and to all paid after that date a penalty of 5 per cent will be added. The new law takes effect December 1. 1911.

Exposition on Tour.

An interesting project has been undertaken by a well-known travel bureau of New England, which should result in establishing closer trade relations with the Latin-American countries. It is proposed to charter a steamship and to arrange suitable accommodations on one of the main decks of the vessel for about 100 commercial exhibits. It is stated that the strictest care will be taken by those in charge of this expedition to accept only exhibitors of recognized standing, in order to insure an absolutely representative display of the best products of the United States.

This commercial exposition ship, with a party of about 300, it is propsed, will leave New York early in November next and visit the various ports of Cuba, Porto Rico, Jamaica, Colombia, Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador, Panama and Mexico, arriving in San Francisco toward the end of January 1912.

The tour will then probably be extended to the Orient and the vessel will return through the Suez and Mediterranean, visiting many important ports. Efforts are to be made to make the stay of this exposition ship at every port of significance and value for the promotion of the export trade of the United States. Banquets will be given to leading citizens of the cities visited and a campaign of advance publicity is to be inaugurated.

Similar methods of trade extension have been used quite successfully in a number of European countries, and this proposed tour, which is apparently the first commercial cruise expedition from the United States, will be watched with great interest.—Government Consular Report.

Loss of Time Means Loss of Pay.

Kidney trouble and the ills it breeds means lost time and lost pay to many a working man. M. Balent, 1214 Little Penna St., Streator, Ill., was so bad from kidney and bladder trouble that he could not work, but he says: "I took Foley Kidney Pills for only a short time and got entirely well and was soon able to go back to work, and am feeling well and healthier than before." Foley Kidney Pills are tonic in action, quick in results—a good friend to the working man or woman who suffers from kidney ills. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

WILLIAMS GROVE PICNIC

Reduced Rates via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the Grangers' picnic, Williams Grove, Pa., August 28 to September 2, the Pennsylvania Railroad will sell excursion tickets to Williams Grove from stations in Pennsylvania and from Baltimore, Elmira, Frederick and intermediate stations on the Northern Central Railway, August 22 to September 1, inclusive, good for return passage to reach original starting point not later than September 5, at reduced rates.

The Crops.

Bradstreet's Report says:—Crop conditions are still very spotted. July was a month of deterioration, though rains late in that month and early in August helped repair late crops, more especially corn. A broad generalization is that most crops are short of last year owing to the heat and drought. Exceptions to this rule are flax and apples at the north and cotton, rice, corn and cane sugar at the south. Potatoes, tobacco, hay, oats, spring wheat and corn are the chief sufferers. The south is an especially favored section this year, as most of its leading products promise excellently.

Reports to Bradstreets's this week are of improvement in corn since August 1, due to rains. Present high temperatures in the southwest, however, may arrest the tendency to rally from the undeniably low condition of July. Kansas prospects are for a crop abont equal to a year ago, but Missouri promises only a two-thirds crop.

Reports as to spring wheat are very conflicting. Rust is claimed to have done damage since the government report, which was a poor one, was made up on August 1. Rains have interfered with harvesting. Late advices from Winnipeg are that it is believed that rust damage in Canada is not large, and a bumper crop is looked for. The plant there is late and green, however, and needs warm, dry weather from now till harvest.

Winter-wheat marketing has already accounted for one-seventh of the crop, and the movement is falling off.

Cotton reports are good as a whole. Excessively hot, dry weather in Texas is credited with injuring the crop to some extent. In the lower Mississippi valley crop conditions have seldom been better. So far the boll weevil in Mississippi has not done expected damage, sugar cane is in the best condition in years, and there will be a heavy yield of rice. Corn in the south is the best situated of any section. Caterpillars and cotton worms are reported in Alabama, where the plant is large and sappy. Cotton and corn are in excellent condition in Georgia and the Carolinas.

Oregon hop growers are getting the best August prices for twenty years past.

Win Thomson Scholarships.

Robert Francis Hohman, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, and John James Caldwell, of New Florence, Penna., are announced as the latest successful candidates for the Frank Thomson Scholarships. At present there are eight holders of these scholarships, which is the number maintained out of a fund endowed in the sum of $120,000, by the three children of the late Frank Thomson, former President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, as a memorial to their father. Each year two scholarships, each amounting to $600 annually, are awarded on competitive examination to sons of employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad System.

The Frank Thomson Scholarships were established in 1907, and were designed to afford to sons of living and deceased employes of all the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad System an opportunity for a technical education so as to enable them to qualify themselves for employment by the Company. Each year two four-year scholarships are awarded, and this year the competitive examination was open to the sons of some 182,000 men. After passing the examination, the winners of the scholarships must qualify for admission to one of the technical schools approved by the Company before receiving certificates entitling them to draw upon the Scholarship Fund.

Robert F. Hohman is the son of Henry Hohman, a machinist in the Company's shops at Fort Wayne, Indiana. He is 20 years of age and is a graduate of the Fort Wayne High School, in the class of 1909. Since that time he has been attending the Valparaiso Normal College. He expects to enter Columbia University of New York.

John James Caldwell is the son of John M. Caldwell, a freight conductor on the Pittsburg Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad East of Pittsburg. He was graduated from the Greensburg High School this year, being an honor man of his class. He intends to enter Lehigh University.

The examinations for the Frank Thomson scholarships were conducted by the College Entrance Examination Board of New York City, and correspond in general to the entrance requirements of the scientific department of universities, colleges and technical schools.

BIG EVENT COMING

To Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary of Battle of Gettysburg.

The Joint Committee of Congress in the celebration of the semi-centennial of the Battle of Gettysburg held two meetings in Washington a few days ago with members of the Pennsylvania commission in charge of the program. Members of the Committee of Congress present were: Senator Oliver, of Pennsylvania, Chairman; Senator Heyburn, of Idaho; Representative Lafean, of York, Pa., and Representative Lamb, of Richmond, Va.

The Pennsylvania commission was represented by Captain J. Richards Boyle, of Philadelphia, secretary; Major R. Dale Benson, of Philadelphia, and Captain J. W. Patterson, Pittsburg. A tentative program has been worked out. The function of the Congressional committee is to arrange for national participation. Congress and all the States have accepted invitations.

The State of Pennsylvania will spend a quarter of a million dollars in the celebration, which will begin July 1, 1913, and end July 3 with the laying of the cornerstone of a national peace memorial by the President of the United States.

July 1 will be Veteran's Day, participated in by survivors of the Union and Confederate Armies, with the commanders in chief of the G. A. R., and the United Confederates Veterans presiding.

July 2 will be Military Day, participated in by detachments of the United States army, troops of all the United States, commanded by the chief of staff of the United States army.

July 3 will be Civil Day, under the personal supervision of the Governor of Pennsylvania, with the Governors of all the States and their staff participating.

July 4 will be National Day, with the President and Vice President of the United States, the Supreme Court, the Congressional Committee and the Speaker of the House, as honor guests. The President will deliver an oration and cap the celebration with the laying of the corner stone. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court will preside on National Day.

The Difference.

Father (a few years hence)—No, I'll never consent to your marriage with young Saphead. He's as poor as Job's turkey.

Daughter—Why, he has a whole trunkful of railroad stocks and you are only a railroad brakeman.

Father Yes, but his stocks pay no dividends, and I get good wages.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Miller, of State College, with their two children, spent Sunday with Mrs. Miller's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Smith.

J. William Kepler, of Pine Grove Mills, was a visitor in town on Tuesday, adding good looks to the general make-up of the Democratic County Committee meeting.

Isaac R. Williams, one of our valued subscribers at Howard, was a welcome caller a few days ago, dropping in to advance his subscription to "The Republican" another year.

WANTED:—Reliable man to sell fruit and ornamental trees, shrubs, roses, bulbs, and berry bushes. Permanent position. Free outfit. Brown Brothers Nurseries, Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. James Harris and children, of Reading, are visitors in Bellefonte. Mr. Harris will return to Reading on Saturday or Sunday, but Mrs Harris and the children will remain here for several weeks.

Misses Nannie and Helen Wise, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wise, formerly of Bellefonte, but now of Spring Grove, arrived in town last Thursday for a visit of two weeks with their relatives and numerous friends.

Miss Grace Crawford was recently a guest of Miss Linnie Royer at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Royer at Tyrone. Miss Crawford is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crawford, of Spring Street.

J. O. Reed, one of Philipsburg's substantial citizens, was yesterday a visitor in Bellefonte. Mr. Reed is actively interested in traction and railroad operations and is also extensively engaged in the grain and feed business. His mission here was to purchase hay.

Mrs. Robert Burns and three interesting children, who had been visiting with Mrs. Burns' mother, Mrs. Mary Taylor, returned on Wednesday to their home in Pittsburg. They were accompanied by Mrs. Burns' sister, Miss Lillian Taylor, who will teach school in Pittsburg next winter.

Mrs. M. J. Morgan and son, William, and Miss Pearl Deeter, of Altoona, tarried in Bellefonte on Saturday and while here gave "The Republican" office a call. They were enroute to State College, where they are visiting at the home of Joseph Edmonson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Owens departed today for an outing, which will be enjoyed at Atlantic City, New York and also up in Connecticut. Ed is one of the right hand men at the Potter—Hoy Hardware Company and has been keeping so closely to business that his outing will no doubt be greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Joseph Baker and little son, Joseph Baker, Jr., of Watsontown, spent several days this week with Mr. and Mrs. John Curtin. Mrs. Baker's sister, Miss Bettie Brees, of Jenkintown, who is spending the summer at Eaglesmere, came up during the week for a few days' visit with Mrs. J. Mac. Curtin.

One of the new teachers for the Bellefonte High School was not chosen at the meeting of the Board of School Directors held on Monday evening. The new teacher is a hustling young man who arrived in Bellefonte on Thursday night of last week and who is the cause of numerous congratulations to Professor and Mrs. Jonas E. Wagner.

Captain W. H. Fry, of Pine Grove Mills, Democratic aspirant for nomination for County Commissioner, was among the visitors in town on Tuesday for the meeting of the Democratic County Committee. The Captain says that he has his eye on the Democratic voters and that quite naturally he wants their votes at the primaries.

The Bellefonte Shirt Factory will tomorrow close down for three weeks, this being customary at the wind-up of the season. During the time the plant is not in operation inventory will be taken and stock placed in readiness for filling orders for the next season's line of goods. Manager Ray has dispensed with gasoline engine power and in the future will operate his machines with electricity.

Mrs. Elizabeth Robb returned home on Friday of last week from Pittsburg, where she had been visiting her sons, Harry and Arthur, and her daughter, Mrs. Carrie Graham, for the last three weeks. She was accompanied home by Mrs. Graham and the latter's son, George. Mrs. Graham remained until today, when she departed for Atlantic City for a ten days visit with Miss Lottie Robb. George will remain with his grandmother until his mother returns.

The Lock Haven State Normal School has graduated 2500 students. A large percent of them have followed the profession of teaching but some are in business and otherwise engaged. Wherever they have gone, they have carried with them the high ideals and progressive aims of this great home school. Parents can feel safe concerning their children when they become Lock Haven students. The sympathetic discipline about the institution is inspiring and helpful to students. This is one of the reasons why careful parents are selecting this school. It has a modern equipment, a fine faculty, and the location is healthful and attractive. Write for its illustrated catalog.

The Philadelphia "Press" on Saturday last published the following despatch from Pottsville, telling of the death of Miss Anna M. Bright, who was known in Bellefonte and who was a relative of the Blanchard family of this place: Death won today in the race which Miss Anna M. Bright, of Pottsville, homeward bound from England, was making in order that she might die on her native soil. She was taken ill while touring the Continent, and though in a critical condition, set sail for home, three days ago. A wireless message was received in Pottsville on Friday that she died that morning aboard ship. She was the daughter of the late George Bright, a millionaire merchant.

On account of the Business Men's picnic at Hecla, Park, on Tuesday of next week, the Bellefonte Central Railroad will run a special train to State College and intermediate points, leaving Bellefonte at 7 o'clock, p. m.

Joe. McSuley this week painted a large sign for the Beezer garage, the style of lettering being such as to make the name stand out conspicuously and be easily read at quite a distance. When Joe. is at his best his sign painting is the best ever.

"Major" A. B. Young, foreman at "The Republican" office, a day or two ago received word that there was "something doing" at his home. There wasn't any mistake about the message, for Mrs. Young had presented him with twins. Andy's title now is "General."

Several foreigners, who had become mixed up in a scrap at one of the lime-kilns nearby town, carried their troubles to Squire Henry D. Brown on Tuesday evening. Squire Brown listened to their troubles and seemed to be satisfying all hands around when he divided the costs equally and told them to go home.

A pleasant caller at "The Republican" office yesterday was Mrs. Edward Whitaker, whose mission was to advance their subscription another year. Her husband is so busy these days hauling picnic trains over the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania line that he couldn't find time to visit our office, so Mrs. Whitaker had to attend to the matter.

Eighteen carloads of excursionists from Altoona visited Hecla Park on Tuesday, only to have their proposed picnic marred by the heavy downpour of rain. The visitors represented workmen from the Juniata shops and also their families On Saturday the clerks from the Altoona offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad, accompanied by their families, will hold their annual outing at Hecla. A crowd of more than 1000 is anticipated.

Fifty members of the Undine hose company, of Bellefonte, departed yesterday for DuBois, where the annual State convention of firemen is in session. The feature of the convention will be the parade today. The Bellefonte boys are hopeful of carrying off one or more prizes. Owing to the heavy expense which would have been involved in taking a local band along, the Bellefonte boys engaged a Curwensville band to lead them in today's parade.

Looking like a bunch of bright, new dollars, the Coleville band was out on dress parade on Tuesday evening. For several days the members of the band were busy soliciting funds from the business men and others in Bellefonte with which to pay for new uniforms. On Tuesday evening the boys wore the uniforms for the first time and presented a fine appearance. After marching to the Court House diamond the band proceeded to the new High School Building, where a delightful concert was rendered.

There were 442 passengers from Bellefonte on the Pennsylvania Railroad excursion to Gettysburg on Sunday, last, and the total number of passengers on board when the train reached Montandon was something over 1060. As a result of perplexing delays usually attending the handling of a larger crowd than was expected, the excursionists did not arrive at Gettysburg until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Two special trains were run, one reaching Bellefonte about 4 o'clock Monday morning and the other coming in about one-half hour later. Some of excursionists were so tired by the time they arrived home that they were disposed to believe the trip to the famous battle field was pretty nearly as strenuous as the experiences there fifty years ago.

A most interesting and genial caller at "The Republican" office on Monday was the venerable H. H. Yarnell, a former resident of Centre County, but for the last seventeen years located near Connellsville, Fayette County. He entered his name as a subscriber to "The Republican." Mr. Yarnell was born and raised in the Buffalo Run valley, his father having lived on the farm adjoining the Robert Hunter farm. Seventeen years ago he removed to Fayette County and like many others who located in that section he has prospered and achieved well earned success. Mr. Yarnell has been visiting old friends and scenes in Centre County since July 1, and he has been enjoying himself so well that he will remain until along toward the end of September. While in town Mr. Yarnell took particular interest in inspecting the remodeled Court House. Regarding the improvements to the Court House, Mr. Yarnell said: "I am inclined to think that some of the people in Centre County fail to appreciate the splendid improvements made to their Court House and at a cost that is ridiculously low when compared with what our Court House in Fayette County has cost. Our Court House there originally cost us a half million of dollars, and since that time it has been necessary to enlarge it, not only once but twice. Each time the cost has been large, and now it will again be necessary to enlarge it. At that, your Court House, as it stands today, is just as good as ours and far better than many others, and it has cost the people of Centre County much less. In my judgment the present board of County Commissioners have done the work economically and well and they certainly deserve to be rewarded with re-election. As I understand it, numerous grand juries recommended that the Court House here be repaired and the present board of County Commissioners is the first to have the courage to do it. I for one want to congratulate the present board of County Commissioners and I am only sorry that I will be unable to vote to give them another term. I know that out in Fayette County the people would be glad to turn in and re-elect men like your present board in this County."

Mr. and Mrs. David J. Kelly were visitors to Philadelphia this week.

At the United Brethren church parsonage, on Thursday of last week, Rev. C. W. Winey united in marriage Edward L. Watkins, of Pleasant Gap, and Miss Sarah Parks, of Bellefonte.

Mrs. H. M. Hiller, of Chester, who is visiting at the Wilson home, on High Street, on Tuesday gave a tea in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. George S. Hayes, of Pittsburg, who with Dr. Hayes arrived in Bellefonte this week for a brief visit.

A most cordial invitation is extended to everybody to attend the porch-party at the home of Mrs. T. H. Harter, on Allegheny Street this (Thursday) evening. Home-made ice cream and cake will be sold for the benefit of the Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church.

Lester Claster, of Lock Haven, is at present on duty at the Claster Underselling Store and will probably remain until a general manager is selected to succeed Moris Hurwitz, who resigned to open a new store at State College. Mr. Hurwitz is this week in New York purchasing his stock.

The fall term of the Lock Haven State Normal school opens September 11th., and already almost all of its rooms are reserved. Now is the time to engage rooms if students desire to have any choice whatsoever. The expenses are moderate and the advantages are of the very best. Its faculty is made up of college and university gradutes who have had wide experience as teachers. Being located in the central part of Pennsylvania on both the lines of the Pennsylvania railroad and the New York Cenfor itstral it iseasily accessible. Write catalog.

THINK THIS OVER.

You say you can make more from your surplus than a life insurance policy will make for you.

How much comfort of mind will your "increased earnings" bring you when you are ill and face the question of your family's needs?

Mental worry and illness combined speeds death.

Mental ease contributes to longevity.

A Royal Union policy is the greatest balm in the world for that feeling of uncertainty about your family's future if you are no longer here to provide for them, and for the time when age will impair your activity. No policy is better secured or yields a better return to its holder than the ones issued by the Royal Union.
